CAPTAIN FALKENBERG BARES DEAL WITH STEAMSHIP COMPANY IN GOVERNMENT INVESTIGATION.

LARGE SUMS EXPENDED

Conceded That Two Million Dollars Were Spent to Get Supplies to Warships Lying Off American Coast.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Nov. 24.—How the Hamburg-American line succeeded in reaching German warships in the Atlantic in August and September, 1914, with two thousand tons of coal and large amounts of foodstuffs by means of the steamer Burwin, an American boat under the American flag, was told today on the witness stand by the Burwin's captain, Fritz Edward Falkenberg.

Captain Falkenberg was a government witness in the trial of Karl Buenz, George Kotter, and Adolph Hochmeister and John Popinghaus, all officials of the Hamburg-American line on trial on charges of conspiring to deceive and defraud the United States.

Falkenberg's Testimony.

The Burwin sailed from New York at 9:30 at night, August 15, ostensively for Buenos Ayres with Popinghaus as supercargo and in charge. Taking up Captain Falkenberg's story there her movements were as follows:

"First Popinghaus ordered him to stay within the three mile limit after leaving Sandy Hook to avoid British cruisers, but later instructed him to steer for Cape Raquge. There he was told to steam back and forth over a sixty mile course, and finally at 6:30 a. m., August 28, sighted a German fleet of five ships.

"The ships were the Cape Trafalgar, the Pontas, the Eleanor Woermer, the Santa Lucia and the German gunboat Eber. The Cape Trafalgar hoisted a signal, "B. M." meaning "come nearer, after the Burwin, on Popinghaus' order, had hoisted the same letters. The weather was stormy, the winds high and the seas heavy, so the Burwin, unable to discharge her cargo, stayed sixteen days with the German fleet. When the elements moderated she discharged her provisions, forty tons of many kinds of foodstuffs and much of her coal, to the Cape Trafalgar and the Eleanor Woermer. On September 10, or thereabouts, three of the fleet sailed away, leaving only the Pontas and Cape Trafalgar, to which the Burwin was still discharging her cargo. Before leaving, however, the Eber gave up her guns—two four-inch rifles and six one-pounders—to the Cape Trafalgar.

Pursued by British Ships.

"On the morning of September 14, 1914," Captain Falkenberg testified, "the Cape Trafalgar and Pontas were surprised by the British auxiliary cruiser Carmania and another British steamer which came on fast, intending to give battle. The Germans turned to flee and the Burwin weighing anchor, trailed slowly behind.

"The Carmania gained fast," Captain Falkenberg said. "The Cape Trafalgar steamed south about a mile and then turned right about and faced the Carmania. They were about two and a half miles apart. The Carmania fired the first shot and then another one before the Cape Trafalgar replied. They both then began firing fast.

"The Pontas kept on her way, leaving the Cape Trafalgar to fight alone. In half an hour both the Carmania and Cape Trafalgar were badly afire and in two hours the Cape Trafalgar sank.

German Official on Ship.

"Popinghaus was aboard the Eleanor Woermer at this time," Captain Falkenberg testified. "The Burwin later joined the Eleanor Woermer, went to Rio Janeiro, got a cargo and returned home. She failed to reach Buenos Ayres, the port for which she cleared."

The government charged that the Burwin was the only one of the sixteen boats chartered by the defendants at a cost of two million dollars, to relieve German cruisers, which succeeded in their errand. The others, it is believed, were all captured before they reached the Germans. Captain Falkenberg said that George Kotter, superintendent of the line, made him a present of $500 in return for his service, when the Burwin got back to New York.

Huge Sums Expended.

While counsel for the defense concedes two million dollars of German money was expended substantially in the manner alleged, the evidence thus far has dealt only with expenditures of $750,000 under direction of Captain Karl Boy-Ed, the German naval attache. Of this amount, according to one of the government's chief witnesses, $500,000 was sent to San Francisco to fill the supply ships leaving Pacific Coast ports. The charge of conspiracy is so broad that it takes in about every act that can be proved to have been committed during first two months of the war in furtherance of German naval warfare. The prosecution expects that before the trial is over there will have been written into the record of the case, a large part of the history of the raids the early part of the war.

The government has fifty witnesses or more still to be heard. Members of the crews of many of the supply ships will tell of being rescued by British war vessels that sunk or captured their ships or of getting safely back after their ships had completed their mission.

Guard Government Buildings.

Washington, Nov. 24.—The watchfulness of the guard about all the principal government buildings in the capital has been redoubled under special orders. Today guards stationed at strategic positions commanding all entrances in the building which houses the state, war and navy departments were under orders to question and if necessary to search any persons of whom they had doubt. Anyone carrying a package of any sort was subject to questioning. Hundreds of tourists pass through the building daily.

Since a bomb explosion wrecked a room in the capital last summer, and bomb plots generally have kept government detectives busy, there has been more than usual activity among the guards here, but now the watch is even more active.

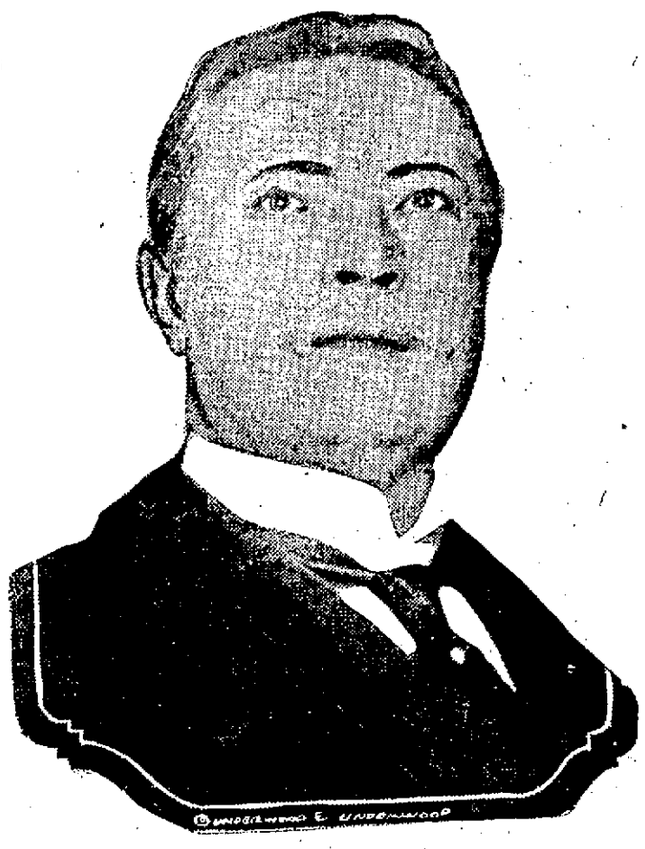

BUILDING BIG SHIPS ON DELAWARE RIVER

Contracts for Four Vessels Valued at Three Million Dollars Have Been Placed.

Philadelphia, Nov. 24.—Contracts for building four more steamships valued at three million dollars shave been placed with Delaware river shipbuilding companies, it was learned today. Two of the ships are for the Mexican Petroleum company. The others are colliers for the Coastwise Transportation company and Pocahontas Navigation company.

With these awards contracts are now held by yards on the Delaware river for eighty-two ships valued at $58,000,000, and aggregating 383,079 tons. More than 2,000 men are engaged in shipbuilding along the Delaware.

SENSATIONS LOOKED FOR AT TRIAL OF MEN CHARGED BY U. S. WITH CONSPIRACY

Dr. Karl Buenz.

DR. KARL BUENZ.

Sensational disclosures are expected at the trial in a New York federal court of Dr. Karl Buenz, managing director of the Hamburg-American line, on charges of conspiracy to deceive and defraud the United States by sending supply ships to the German cruisers in the Atlantic in the early stages of the war. Three other officers of the Hamburg-American line are on trial with Dr. Buenz.

NOTE FROM ENTENTE DEMANDS STATEMENT OF GREECE'S POLICY

Greek Cabinet Immediately Called Into Session—Demands Less Exacting Than Expected.

London, Nov. 24.—A Reuter message from Athens says the entente minister presented a collective note to Premier Skouloudis demanding "that Greece define her attitude." The cabinet was immediately called together. After the cabinet meeting Greek ministers said the situation had been cleared by the presentation of the note, which gave the government definite information in regard to what was expected by the allies. These demands were less exacting than had been expected. Greece never has refused requests for assurances for the security of allies' troops in Macedonia, the ministers declared.

Greece May Disarm

Paris, Nov 24.—Premier Skoulodis of Greece, is quoted by the Pettit Parisien today as saying if the allied forces in Macedonia retreat across the border, Greece may disarm them although the Greek government had not committed itself on this point.

BESEECH A PEACE MOVE BY WILSON

Ask the President to Use Influence to Bring About a Conference of Neutral Countries.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Nov. 24.—Telegrams began pouring in to the White House today from all sections of the country urging President Wilson to assist in a movement for a conference of neutrals to attempt to end the European war. Mrs. Henry Ford recently gave $10,000 to the women's peace party toward the telagram campaign.

The messages, which were suggested by Miss Jane Addams and other leading women peace advocates, were identical. The telegraph companies notified the White House they had thousands of these messages and asked that special arrangements be made at the White House for receiving them. The campaign will be brought to a climax on Friday.

Ford's Plan.

New York, Nov. 24.—Henry Ford, the Detroit manufacturer, announced today that he would take a peace expedition to Europe to attempt to end the war. Mr. Ford will invite leading American pacifists to join in the expedition, as well as peace advocates from other neutral countries.

STATE WILL DENY CAMPBELL'S WORDS

Housekeeper Disputes Testimony of "Chicken Joe" Campbell In Joliet Murder Trial.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Joliet, Ill., Nov. 24.—The state today in the trial of "Chicken Joe" Campbell for alleged murder of Mrs. Odette Allen, wife of the former warden, began today with the prosecution ready to refute Campbell's previous testimony.

Mrs. Anna J. Emery, housekeeper for the warden, denied flatly that the alcohol jug with which Mrs. Allen supposedly was beat to death was kept in the murdered woman's room regularly. Campbell had testified to the contrary. Similar denials to points in Campbell's testimony were made by other witnesses.

TRAMPS ATTRACTED BY THE FREE BATH

"Weary Willie" Must Be a Changed Man From His Grandfather Around Appleton.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Appleton, Nov. 24.—Free baths brought more lodgers to the Appleton police station last winter than free breakfasts, according to a tramp who spent last night at the station. The first thing he asked was whether the new station had baths, and then he gave away the popularity of the old station which had bath tubs.

Chief Garvey has decided not to open the showerbaths in the cell rooms to them in an effort to keep the wandering population away. Last winter they were given free baths and free breakfasts.

TERM OF ONE YEAR FOR FALSE WITNESS

Green Bay Man, Who Swore Falsely to Obtain Marriage License, Sentenced to Reformatory.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Green Bay, Nov. 24.—Pierce M. Sweig, charged with perjury, pleaded guilty in the municipal court today and was sentenced to one year in the state reformatory. Sweig was charged with swearing falsely to an affidavit to obtain a marriage license. He said he was single, when in reality he was married.

Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 24.—The commonwealth government has decided to raise an additional 50,000. This will bring the Australian contingent for the war to 300,000.

MADISON ITALIAN GIRL STILL MISSING

Unable To Find Trace Of Sixteen-Year-Old Girl Kidnapped On Madison Streets.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Nov. 24.—No further trace of Anna Russo, a pretty sixteen-year-old Italian girl who was kidnapped on the streets of Madison yesterday, has been found.

CUNNINGHAM SEES MALICE IN LAW SUIT

ATTORNEY IN PLEA TO JURY CHARGES ACTION WAS BROUGHT TO HURT HIS STANDING AS OFFICIAL.

CASE GOES TO JURY

After Three Hours of Arguments Jury Retires at Four O'clock Today—To Return Sealed Verdict.

The case of Mrs. Eulalia Abraham against John E. Nolan and J. J. Cunningham, co-defendants, an action for damages to the amount of $900 which she alleges was obtained from her through threats, went to the jury in the circuit court this afternoon at four o'clock, after three hours of pleadings on the part of counsel for the parties. The jury will determine a verdict which will be opened before Judge Grimm at two o'clock on Friday. Judge Turner, who has been the trial judge in the case, left for Milwaukee late this afternoon.

M. O. Mouat of counsel for plaintiff opened the address to the jury. He was followed by J. J. Cunningham, one of the defendants, then by Attorney George G. Sutherland, attorney for Mr Nolan, and O. A. Oestreich closed the pleadings for the plaintiff.

Mr. Cunningham throughout the greater portion of his plea was cool and reserved and only raised his voice to high pitch at times on remarks regarding the complaint being but a malice action to humiliate him as postmaster.

Opening, he expressed the opinion that the case was more than of ordinary interest because of the complaint, "drafted by my friend here (pointing to Mr. Oestreich) and served by him." Again, the case was interesting because of its character, to which, he said, the witnesses introduced by the plaintiff's attorneys, refused to swear to its text on the witness stand.

He compared the testimony of Mrs. Abraham with the text of the complaint and observed that there was absolutely no evidence of conspiracy on the part of Mr. Nolan and himself to get hold of, or grab away this $900 in the lawsuit.

"They put in that this was done in the United States postoffice in the city of Janesville so that it would be a terrible thing and so that the public would be excited," he shouted. "All this had to go in to humiliate the postmaster that he (meaning Oestreich) might get the postmaster's job for himself. But I attended to my work. They cannot get my position from me. It was after I had finished my duties that Nolan and Mrs. Abraham came to me, after three o'clock. I was through with the postoffice duties for the day. There is no regulation nor reason why I could not do this business. Therefore, there was no reason for inserting the postoffice feature in this paper, but for the purpose of malice to me and my position."

Close Testimony.

Testimony on the part of the plaintiff was finished yesterday afternoon and this morning the defense rested its case after calling several witnesses to the stand. Matters then began to verge to the opening of final pleas. Additional arguments on the part of J. J. Cunningham to have the action against him dismissed and the plea of Attorney A. E. Oestreich against such course continued until shortly before the noon hour adjournment. Judge Turner overruled the motion and the jury was called in to hear the opening of Attorney M. O. Mouat's plea in behalf of the plaintiff. Each side was allotted an hour and a half for arguments to the jury.

During the early part of the morning's trial Abraham and his wife and her mother sat together, highly interested in the proceedings. Abraham, on his lap, held his six months' old baby.

A large gallery has been present throughout. Yesterday afternoon the court room was filled with spectators. The case has aroused considerable interest among Janesville attorneys, many having attended the trial since its opening Monday.

Cunningham, the defendant, Driver Smith of the rural service department of the postoffice, Chief of Police Champion, Joseph Nolan, the 15 year old son of one of the defendants, John E. Nolan and Mrs. Harry Smith were called by Attorney Sutherland for direct examination for the defense.

Smith told of taking Mrs. Abraham to her home on the afternoon of January 5 and of returning to the postoffice with her in his rig. He said he was under civil service but at the time of the journey had finished his work and was free to do as he so pleased.

Abraham Free To Go?

Chief Champion testified that on the afternoon of January 5 he had told Abraham that he was free to go from the station when he so desired and also that he had told them, Abraham and his wife, to consult an attorney. Cross examination by Oestreich brought out the statement that the chief didn't know why he telephoned District Attorney Dunwiddie relative to keeping Abraham at the station.

Cross examination of Joseph Nolan by the plaintiff's attorney failed to turn the youth from his testimony under the direct examining of Mr. Cunningham. He told of the conversation Mrs. Abraham had with his father on the afternoon of January 5 and related that she said, on coming to the store that, "I have come down to settle up this trouble of Guernsy's, Mr. Nolan."

Cunningham on Stand.

Mr. Cunningham denied on the stand that he had ever said that Abraham would be criminally prosecuted if the money and the latter's interest in the Nolan store were not paid over. Nothing was said about prosecution for embezzlement, Mrs. Abraham never asked to have her husband present at the transaction and since the eventful day no demand had ever been made on Mr. Cunningham by the defendant in the case. The typewritten document of transfer of Abraham's interest in the store to Nolan, including handwritten changes, testified as being approved both by the husband and his father, were intro-

FRENCH STILL HOLD RAJAC RIVER GORGE

DISPLAY SUPERIORITY

French Tactics Prove Much More Skillful Than Enemy's Despite Latter's Familiarity With Country.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

French Headquarters, Kavadar, Serbia, by Courier to Saloniki, Greece, Nov. 22, via Paris, Nov. 24.—A sanguinary battle between the French and Bulgarians in the gorge of the Rajec river, a confluent of the Cerna, southeastern Serbia, has resulted thus far in the retirement of the French from a point north of Drenovo to the right bank of the Cerna. The French, however, are still holding the Rajec gorge, and the important bridgehead at Bojharsti controlling the heights opposite Gradisce.

Visits French Position.

The Associated Press correspondent today visited the French post west of the Rajec bridgehead, which is detailed to guard the strong narrow position in the granite-walled gorge. This gorge, however, is exposed to artillery fire from the surrounding heights. Through it runs a narrow rapid stream held by infantry.

Half an hour later, the correspondent with a party of French officers, watched the battle from the neighboring hills. Every detail was visible except during occasional periods of the lowering of mist from the hill tops.

Hostilities were opened with a savage artillery duel. From the point of observation flashes of flame and puffs of smoke could be seen revealing the position of the guns on both sides of the Vardar river, which is joined by the Cerna a few miles north of Grenovo. Clouds of smoke from the bursting shells gave some idea of result of the fire, which the Belgians concentrated in an effort to dislodge the French from the Rajec gorge. Shrapnel was placed successfully within the gorge several times.

Put Bulgars to Fight.

Soon the whir of machine guns and the popping of rifle fire betrayed the position of the Bulgarian infantry. On the hill behind the gorge moving figures could be seen outlined against the sky. They climbed with what seemed to be interminable slowness, until after a brief struggle with the bayonet the Bulgarians fled, disappearing over the crest.

Meanwhile from the direction of Kavadar a train of ambulances sped toward the scene of battle to collect the French wounded. General —— followed in an automobile to take direction of the action on the ground. The Bulgarians are bringing up heavy forces from the neighborhood of Prilep. The French plan of campaign seems to have been to occupy as quickly as possible the maximum number of positions of natural strength and to take care of their communications as effectively as could be done with the forces available. When one position thus held is made the object of serious attack, the French withdraw, as the complete lack of effective means of transportation renders the rapid shifting of troops from one position to another impracticable.

French Show Superiority.

A striking feature of the campaign in Serbia is its utter unlikeness to that in France. Trenches are constructed for only temporary use in actual battle. The broken country facilitates the employment of tactical skill in which the French seem to be superior to the Bulgarians, notwithstanding their lack of familiarity with the country.

Neither battlefields nor encampments resemble in the least those in France. The soldiers are camped in tents in the open plain, as the Bulgarians thus far have not employed aeroplanes. The camps are changed frequently to keep pace with the movements of the battle lines.

Artillerymen for the first time since the beginning of the war often have the opportunity of actually seeing the mark whereat they are aiming.

The famous French three-inch guns, firing almost with the rapidity of machine guns, inflicted extraordinary havoc on the Bulgarians.

Advantage of French Aviators.

French aviators are enjoying the opportunity presented by lack of Bulgarian aircraft guns of flying low over the positions of their opponents and actually photographing them with such detail as to reveal the number and locations of the hostile forces.

The Serbians in the north are said to be concentrating on the historic Kossovo plain with the idea of attempting an offensive in the direction of Uskub. It is reported that six divisions will debark from the plain by way of Katchanik and Kortchou passes. The Bulgarians are being withdrawn hastily from the Prilep regions. A decisive battle is looked for.

FALLS DOWN SHAFT WITH STORE THIEF

Bodies of Men Discovered at Bottom of Shaft With Arms Locked Together in New York.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Nov. 24.—Locked in each other's arms the bodies of Robert Green, an elevator man and watchman, and a man believed to be a burglar, were found today at the bottom of an elevator shaft in a ten story building in the shopping section of the city.

Green, a negro, had apparently found burglars at work on the tenth story of the building, and while struggling with one of the men, both had fallen into an open elevator shaft. A pile of silks and other goods were in the elevator, evidently piled there by the burglars before they were discovered.

WILSON'S MESSAGE NEARLY COMPLETED

Document Already Approved By Cabinet Will Receive Finishing Touches Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Nov. 24.—President Wilson's annual message to congress, approved unanimously by the cabinet, was nearly completed today. A feature of the message will be the discussion of national defense and revenue, though other questions which the president looks to congress for action will be taken up. These include merchant marine, conservation, greater self government for Philippines and rural credits.

LIMIT SHIPMENTS OF FUEL TO VILLA

Confirm Account of Slaying of American Engineer by Villa Officers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

El Paso, Nov. 24.—United States customs authorities here today announced that the limit was being placed on exportation of fuel through Juarez into territory controlled by General Villa. This, itw as expected, would result in facilitating the movement of Villa military trains.

The military patrol to enforce the state department embargo on munitions to Villa territory recently was withdrawn.

Confirm Story.

Douglas, Ariz., Nov. 24.—Advices from Canonea confirm the killing of Engineer Edgar Bean by Villa officers and state other Americans there were safe. Bean was killed after aiding under compulsion in the escape of General Jose Rodriguez' troops from Canonea. His body was expected to reach Naco today. It was stated that Villa troops looted the homes of two Americans, the stores of the Canonea Consolidated Copper company and compelled American Consul Montague to open bank vaults. Preparations were being made today to reopen the Canonea Altrigre and Nacozari mining camps.

WHITLOCK GREETED BY TOLEDO FRIENDS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

New York, Nov. 24.—Brand Whitlock, American minister to Belgium, and Mrs. Whitlock were met by a delegation from Toledo, headed by Charles Milroy, mayor-elect, when they landed here today from the steamer Ryndam. Mr. Whitlock said that although he was ill when he boarded the ship at Rotterdam and the steamer encountered terrific weather on the voyage, he felt better.

Mr. Whitlock and his wife expect to spend Thanksgiving day here and then will proceed to Washington for a brief stay. From there they will go to Toledo and Cleveland, and expect to sail back to Belgium on December 8th.

Mr. Whitlock said he was here chiefly to rest and visit his mother, and declined to discuss any incidents or phases of the war.

The Ryndam passed three floating mines after sailing from Rotterdam. The first day out the vessel ran into a terrific storm, which washed away two large electric signs with the vessel's name.

SHOOTS ATTORNEY AND SELF IN FEUD

Typist Only Witness To Double Killing Over Bankruptcy Case In Fort Worth, Texas.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Fort Worth, Texas, Nov. 24.—L. O. Legerwood, a prominent attorney, and J. N. Whisenant of Dallas, are dead following a shooting in Legerwood's office this morning. Whisenant is said to have killed the lawyer first, and then himself. The Dallas man was recently indicted here for fraudulent use of the mails in connection with a bankruptcy case.

Miss Mary Melton, Ledgerwood's stenographer, the only eye witness of the shooting, asserts Whisenant entered the office at nine o'clock, walked to Legerwood's desk and cried, "You done me dirt," and fired. She said she heard two more shots as she ran from the room. W. J. Gilvin, who was first to enter the office after the shooting, stated he found Whisenant still alive clutching a pistol. Legerwood was dead and Whisenant too far gone to speak.

The killing is believed to have been result of bankruptcy case in which both were concerned.

CRUISER ORDERED TO MEXICAN PORT

Marines Will Go to Mexican Town to Protect Lives of American Citizens.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Nov. 24.—Admiral Winslow, commanding the Pacific fleet, was ordered from San Francisco to Topolobampo, Mexico, today with his flagship, the cruiser San Diego, which will carry also 275 additional marines ready to land and protect sixty American foreigners. The cruisers Raleigh and New Orleans are nearby and can reach the town in case of need in less than a day's sail. The San Diego's trip from San Francisco will require about six days. The gunboat Annapolis is at Topolobampo on the west coast of Mexico, for the protection of Americans driven from sugar plantations by raiding Indians.

Admiral Winslow may dispatch another ship if conditions do not improve.

CLAIMS OF BOTH SIDES ARE VARIED

CENTRAL POWERS AND ALLIES BOTH CLAIM VICTORIES IN BALKANS.

GREECE IS ANXIOUS

Russia and Italy Prepare for Special Drives Into Interior of Present War Scenes In Near East.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Nov. 24.—Contradictory claims to victory in the Balkans leave the present situation in doubt, but it is evident the advance of the Austro-German armies and their Bulgarian allies is not so rapid as earlier reports indicate. Apparently heavy fighting is under way in the section of the country where the Teutonic invaders are attempting to form a junction with the Bulgarians.

The fate of Monastir is still in the balance. Reports eminating from Athens state that the Bulgarians, having regard for Greek susceptibilities, are waiting for the Germans to come up and occupy the city.

Greece Is Ready.

In the entente capitals renewed confidence is expressed that Greece is moving toward complete agreement to the wishes of the allies. Berlin has revived the report that Russia is contemplating a great campaign in the Balkans, for which a large army has been gathered at Odessa. The Germans who have given publicity to this report, do not seem at all sure Roumania will refuse permission to this army to cross her territory.

Russian Advance.

Petrograd reports a slight advance along the Styr river with sharp checks for the Germans and Austrians on both the northern positions of eastern front. Vienna, however, says that there is nothing worthy of report along this line. Nevertheless, there is apprehension in Vienna and Berlin of the result of the expected Russian offensive in the extreme southeast.

Italy's Hopes.

Italy looks for the immediate fall of Gorzia, which, according to latest reports, is dominated by artillery of both sides and forms a no man's land.

French Reports.

Paris, Nov. 24.—Telegraphing from Saloniki under date of Nov. 23, the correspondent at Saloniki of the Havas News Agency says:

"Four more transports heavily loaded with troops arrived in port this morning."

Italian Advance.

Rome, Nov. 24.—Further advances for the Italian forces in their attack on Gorizia are announced by the war office in tonight's statement. The crest of the Calvario heights west of Gorizia was reached and maintained, it is declared, and positions recently won northewst of Oslavia were strengthened.

German Claims.

Berlin, Nov. 24.—The Serbian towns of Mitrovitza and Christina have been occupied the war office announced today.

CAMPAIGN HAS BEEN STARTED IN STATE

ALL PRINTING AND NEWSPAPER INTERESTS ALLIED FOR BETTERMENT OF CONDITIONS.

WIDE IN ITS SCOPE

New Combination Will Fill Long Felt Want in State Promoting the Interests of Many Various Branches.

At the First State Conference on Printing and Newspaper Publishing held at Madison last May by the Wisconsin State Franklin club, the Wisconsin Press association and the Wisconsin Daily League, in co-operation with the department of Journalism of the State University, these three groups of printers, editors, and publishers voted to co-operate by organizing the Wisconsin Federated Printing and Press Association, the purpose of the federation being to secure united action in advancing the interests of printing and newspaper publishing in Wisconsin and to place it up a footing where it will be more representative of the state.

Under the federation plan each association retains its own organization, elects its own officers, and handles its own funds, but co-operates with the other two associations in such matters as are approved by the three associations.

The affairs of the Federated Associations between the annual conference are in the hands of an executive committee, which includes two representatives from each of the three associations. The members of this executive that were selected by the associations last May are H. L. Hoard, Fort Atkinson, and C. A. Booth, Madison, Wisconsin Press association; George Harrington, Oshkosh, and C. H. Van Vliet, Racine, Wisconsin State Franklin club; F. E. Noyes, Marinette, and H. H. Bliss, Janesville, Wisconsin Daily League. The executive committee elected Prof. W. G. Bleyer of the Department of Journalism of the State University as chairman.

The first step toward co-operative effort was taken by the adoption of the following resolutions:

Whereas, the success of this conference has been due, in large measure, to the efforts of the Department of Journalism of the University of Wisconsin to explain and institute a system of cost accounting for publishers and printers in this state; and

Whereas, This conference has been informed that the Department of Journalism of the University of Wisconsin is eager to co-operate in the matter of the practical application of such a system; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this conference encourage and aid the said department in its plan to establish such a cost accounting system in the offices of printers and publishers throughout the state.

Resolved, That the officers of the three associations, the Wisconsin Press association, the Wisconsin Daily League and the State Franklin clubs have the unanimous endorsement of this conference in an endeavor to secure further co-operation and representation from the printers and newspaper publishers of this state and in seeking to arouse greater interest in an annual conference of printers and newspaper publishers of this state.

Resolved, That it is the pleasure of the three associations, in joint conference, to hold a Second Conference on Printing and Newspaper Publishing, for the year 1916, at a time and place to be decided upon by an executive committee representing the three associations.

The three associations voted to co-operate with the University of Wisconsin in sharing the expense of installing cost accounting systems. It was voted that the most effective way to carry out the plan proposed would be to have a field man to assist printers and publishers to install such systems. It was also decided that this field man should aid both daily and weekly newspaper publishers by compiling data in regard to merchandising conditions in this state, which publishers could use in soliciting "foreign" advertising.

The executive committee of the federated associations took up these matters with the State University authorities, and it was agreed that, as a state wide activity, the work could best be carried on through the Extension Division of the University in co-operation with the Department of Journalism. Dean L. E. Reber of the Extension Division expressed his willingness to co-operate with the federated associations in putting a cost accounting man into the field.

The executive committee of the federated associations, accordingly, met with Dean Reber in Madison Saturday, Nov. 6, and after discussing the matter adopted the following general plan as a basis of action.

Plan of Co-operation Between the Extension Division of the University of Wisconsin and the Wisconsin Federated Printing and Press Associations, Co-operating with the Department of Journalism of the University.

The purpose of the co-operation is: (1) to provide for the installation of an approved cost and accounting system in printing plants of the state; and (2) to secure data in regard to merchandising conditions in the state as provided for in a blank form approved by the Extension Division and the Federated associations.

First—The salary of the field man is to be paid by the Extension Division.

Second—The office and office equipment are to be provided by the Extension Division.

Third—The field man is to be under the direction of the Extension Division.

Fourth—All blanks and forms are to be furnished by the Federated Associations.

Fifth—Each printer and publisher is to pay to the Federated Association an amount equivalent to the traveling and other expenses incurred by the field man in installing a cost system in each office; the Federated Associations to pay the field man the traveling and other expenses incidental to installing the cost accounting system.

Sixth—The cost accounting system used is to be approved by the Extension Division and the Federated Associations.

The executive committee recommended the appointment, as printers' and publishers' field man, of Robert G. Lee, formerly publisher of the Tomahawk Leader and last year vice president of the Wisconsin State Franklin club. It was decided to hold monthly meetings of the executive committee in Madison to consider reports from the field man and to transact the business incidental to the work of the Federated Associations.

George Harrington, president of the Wisconsin State Franklin club, reported to the executive committee that his association had appropriated $500 with which to carry on the co-operative work of the Federated Associations, and H. H. Bliss, secretary of the Wisconsin Daily League announced that his organization at its October meeting appropriated $200 for the same purpose and H. L. Hoard, president of the Wisconsin Press Association stated that his association would appropriate $200.

Application for the services of the field man should be made to the Extension Division, State University.

HOLD NOVEL DEBATE AT FULTON TUESDAY

OLD AND NEW METHODS DISCUSSED BY DEBATERS.—OLD SCHOOL WINS.

SOCIAL CENTER WORK

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Fulton, Wis., Nov. 23.—The Social Center at Fulton gave something new and unique in the way of entertainment at the Fulton church today. The whole day from 10:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. was given to the discussion of the subject for debate: "Resolved, That the Methods Used In the Common Schools of Today are better adapted to the needs of the scholar than the methods used forty years ago." Miss White, principal of the schools, and Prof. F. O. Holt of Edgerton argued the affirmative side of the question, and J. E. Wallin and G. H. Rumrill of Janesville, who was a teacher in the Fulton school forty years ago, took the negative side of the question.

Judge Fifield of Janesville, Mrs. William Flarity of Edgerton and Mrs. William Gardner acted as judges, and taking the question, as it was ably discussed by the debaters, it was a difficult task to decide the uestion. D. F. Sayre was given a seat of honor, he being the first county superintendent of schools in Rock county over fifty years ago. Mr. Sayre gave the audience an interesting talk on the methods of the school of long ago which was enjoyed by all who were present.

The first on the program was the roll call from the original roll book of forty years ago and Mr. Rumrill acted as teacher, and about thirty of the old scholars answered the roll. Those not answering to their names were discussed, and their whereabouts was made known and what lines of business they were following. Mr. Rumrill addressed all of his scholars by their first names, and it was amusing to note the manner and esteem these boys and girls of forty years ago showed their teacher. After the roll call and the general discussion of old times, Miss White opened the debate on the side of the affirmative. She compared the school work as used forty years ago with the work of today. She contrasted the work in arithmetic as taught to the tune of a hickory stick long ago and the advanced methods of the present, and also of writing with the free hand movement which gave the student the opportunity to select the method best adapted to their individual needs.

J. E. Wallin opened the negative side of the question. He contended the school of today taught so many different branches that it was impossible to be thorough, and that if fewer branches of study were pursued and more thoroughly taught, that the scholars of today would be better prepared to meet the world as bread winners. When he went to school thoroughness was the object of the school. Competition in spelling served to stimulate study on the part of the student, and everyone aimed to "beat the other fellow," which had a tendency to make shrewd business men and women.

Prof. F. O. Holt was the next speaker on the affirmative. He opened his address by paying the boys and girls of forty years ago a compliment. He said in part: "Fulton, I believe, has developed more strength of character than any community I have ever known." Then he went on to explain the methods used in the school of today as compared with the old school and to show how the individual scholar was induced to pursue the line of work that he or she was best adapted, and that only practical work was taught in the public schools; that the teachers of today were specialists in their line, each having a special line of work to pursue. It was not so with the old school; the teacher taught the first grade and the intermediate classes. After Prof. Holt had finished his talk it was decided to call a recess for dinner, and about one hundred and fifty retired to the hall and were served with a chicken dinner that would be difficult to duplicate in any community.

Immediately after dinner the school was called to order and Mr. Rumrill argued the question for the negative side. He kept th audience in an uproar at his timely and witty remarks. He cited where the Fulton school had defeated all of the other schools in spelling contests and that the interest taken in this work had stimulated hard work on the part of the students. He also demonstrated with some of his scholars his methods of mental arithmetic, Mrs. Rumrill and Sanford Soverhill of Janesville being the scholars used for this test. W. S. Heddles of Madison also took the stand for the negative and from a business man's standpoint pointed out that the larger per cent of the pupils of our public school never graduate and the course of study that is pursued is a preparatory course to our higher schools and universities, and that the average student that does not finish school does not receive the proper training in penmanship and arithmetic.

Miss Christianson demonstrated with a class of little folks the work being done in the primary department of the present schools, and the little folks did great credit to themselves.

Last, but not least was the spell down. One side consisted of the old school and the other side was members of the present school. Mrs. Carrie Sykes of Milton, who was one of the old school, succeeded in spelling the entire class, Sanford Soverhill of Janesville being her nearest competitor. Those being present from Janesville were: Mr. and Mrs. (Judge) Fifield, Mrs. Sue McManus, Mr. and Mrs. George Rumrill, Mr. and Mrs. Star Atwood, Mrs. George Sutherland, Myron Green and Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Soverhill.

After long and deliberate thought the decision of the judges was given as 2 to 1 in favor of the old schools.

James Conway was the school cut-up and spelled down on the word "cheat." He said he didn't know the meaning of the word so couldn't spell it.

Great credit is due J. E. Wallin, as it was due to his efforts that the day was such a great success, and everyone who had the pleasure of being present at the day's entertainment left with a feeling that there is no place like Fulton.

TUESDAY'S MARKET.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—There was a flood of pigs and underweight hogs among the offerings yesterday, which sold unevenly lower. Heavy swine scarce and generally 5c higher.

Packing droves averaging 165@197 lbs. cost $6.08@6.56, and 210@250 lbs. $6.50@6.72. Top butchers reached $6.80, several packers paying the price.

Lamb values advanced sharply yesterday, with best at $9.25, standing 45c above a week ago. Many traders are of the opinion that prices are dangerously high.

There was an unusually large Tuesday supply of common cattle, and they sold 10@15c lower. Most outside western markets reported offerings of a trashy class.

Average price of hogs at Chicago was $6.36 against $6.39 Monday, $6.30 a week ago, $7.45 a year ago and $7.55 two years ago. Yesterday's purchases:

Armour Buys Fewer Hogs.

Armour bought hogs indifferently yesterday, but other packers supported the late market. A booming trade in provision futures helped some. Today's receipts will include 7,500 from St. Paul, direct to Armour. Pigs and light swine declined 5@10c early in the day, but strengthened later. Quotations:

Bulk of sales	$6.05@6.65
Heavy butchers and shipping	6.65@6.80
Light butchers, 190@230 lbs.	6.40@6.80
Light bacon, 145@190 lbs.	5.80@6.55
Heavy packing, 260@400 lbs.	6.40@6.70
Mixed packing, 200@250 lbs.	6.00@6.45
Rough, heavy packing	6.10@6.35
Poor to best pigs, 60@135 lbs.	4.00@5.75
Stags, 80 lbs. dockage per head	6.00@6.60

Cattle Quality is Poor.

Thirty head of 1,102-lb. yearlings sold yesterday at $9.50, with few good enough to sell above $7. Trade was dull and top-heavy. Butchers' and canning stock closed very weak.

Lambs to Swift at $9.25.

Best lambs sold to Swift at $9.25, or 15c above Monday and 35c above Saturday. Bulk of lambs, $8.90@9.10. Quotations:

Lambs, common to fancy	$8.00@9.25
Lambs, poor to good culls	6.90@7.90
Yearlings, poor to best	6.35@7.85
Wethers, poor to best	6.00@6.50

WILL UNCLE SAM GIVE MONEY AID TO THE MEXICANS?

Financial Assistance Must Be Given Carranza Government To Make It Successful.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 24.— Will Uncle Sam become Mexico's financial angel? This question is the absorbing problem involved in establishing the Carranza government.

That financial help must be given by the United States to Mexico is admitted by officials. The form such aid should take is the principal hitch. High State Department officials intimate that the government cannot appear as a principal in securing credit for Carranza. Its moral support, however, is assured.

The modus operandi probably will be as follows: After Carranza's agents in New York have made guarded overtures to financiers for a loan, quiet inquiries will be made of the State Department if such a loan has the approval of the government. Inquiry will be made as to whether the U. S. would back up the loan in case Carranza's government should fall and collection from a new administration be made necessary. If agents of financiers receive such assurances, the loan will be made, with bonds of the new Mexican government as security.

That Carranza must secure his loan in this country is regarded as certain. Europe's money markets are not open to him. It is possible he might place part of a bond issue with Argentine bankers. The bulk of the transaction must, however, be handled by New York financiers.

Re-establishing Mexico's financial system presents many difficulties to Carranza. Hundreds of counterfeit issues of money are afloat. Villa has issued millions of currency now valueless. In Mexico City alone there are a score of repudiated issues. Huerta's currency is worthless.

Carranza who has announced that he will establish a gold standard for Mexico, with a new currency system similar to the federal reserve act of this country, but he probably will not be able to do it until a new Mexican congress is legally elected.

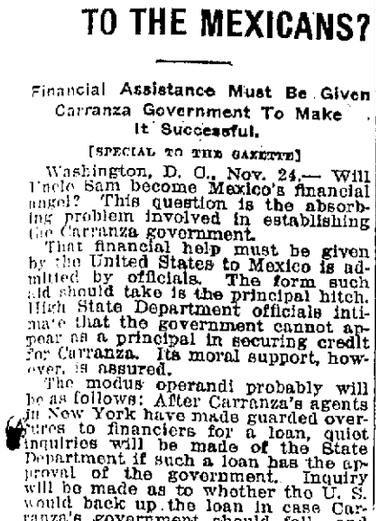

Regarding the immense debt burden faced by Carranza, payment will be effected, according to information here, through claim commissions. Carranza will assent to mixed claims commissions to deal separately with each country presenting claims. Assurance by Carranza that he would honor foreign claims was one of the conditions upon which he was recognized as chief executive. These claims total about $300,000,000.

The Mexican mixed claims commission will, it is reported, be composed of representatives of the interested nations, but the U. S. will not officially participate in collection of claims of other nations.

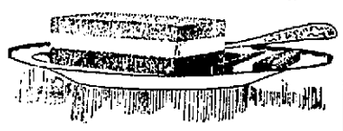

The claims Carranza assumes run back five years from the ousting of President Diaz. No claims for property destroyed and confiscated during that and successive revolutions have ever been paid. This involves lengthy and complicated negotiations before payment of the claims, to establish national responsibility for property losses in the many major and minor revolts.

Solicitor Cone Johnson of the State Department has active charge of the American claims. Many of these have been on file for years, awaiting re-establishment of a stable government from which payment could be demanded. Railroad, mining, oil and ranching interests are the principal American claimants. Americans are stock and bond holders of the Mexican National and other railroads and telegraph companies which have suffered the brunt of revolutions.

Only a small part of the American claims, which now aggregate about $150,000,000, have been filed with the State Department. Others are being received daily.

Whitewater News

LIZABELLE VANCE WEDS WELL KNOWN LOCAL DOCTOR

Whitewater, Nov. 24. — At a very pretty wedding yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Vance on Graham avenue, their daughter, Lizabelle, was married to Dr. Arthur Teetshorn of this city. The ceremony was at 4 o'clock and was performed by Rev. F. P. Starr of Kenosha, an uncle of the groom, the ring service being used. The bride was given away by her brother, Dr. Arthur Vance, of Chicago. She was beautifully gowned in white taffeta, wearing a veil and orange blossoms. The wedding march was played by Dr. Ed. Vance, also a brother of the bride. After hearty congratulations by the guests, who numbered about sixty, including relatives and a few intimate friends, a four course supper was served. Beautiful music was furnished during the evening by Alvin Halgerson and Garrett Erickson.

Dr. Teetshorn is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Teetshorn of Utters Corners. He is a graduate of a Chicago veterinary college and is now practicing in this city. The bride is one of Whitewater's best girls. She has been employed for several years in the McAllister dry goods store and has a host of friends here who extend to them their best wishes for a long, prosperous and happy life. Dr. and Mrs. Teetshorn left last evening for Chicago and we understand expect to spend Thanksgiving in Ames, Iowa.

They will make their home in Mrs. Prairie street.

The following from out of town were present at the wedding: Dr. A. D. Vance and Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Poyner of Chicago; Harvey and John Vance and Miss Abby Kyle of Fort Atkinson; A. H. Cleland of Milton; Mr. and Mrs. F. Afl Walbrant and Clifford Walbrant of East Troy; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Sprackling and Miss Maud Green of Janesville; Mrs. P. F. Stair of Kenosha and Dr. and Mrs. Dike of Johnstown.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lerwill were in Janesville yesterday for a short visit.

The Normal football team and Coach Schrieber attended the annual turkey banquet at the home of Henry Ridge last evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cox leave today for Clinton to spend Thanksgiving with their son, Howard, and family.

Chas. Bienfang goes to Fort Atkinson to attend the funeral of an infant child of his nephew.

Obituary.

Miss Rhoda Maria Weld, whose body was taken to Little Prairie on Monday, was an early settler here. She was born in Redding, Vermont, in 1835, and when three years of age the family moved to western New York, where they remained for the next three years. They then decided to join relatives who were making their homes in the wilderness of Wisconsin territory. The family took a few household goods and secured passage by Erie Canal and Great Lakes to Milwaukee. Their relatives had settled at Little Prairie and were in Milwaukee to meet them. The trip was made by ox team to Little Prairie, their future home. Miss Weld was a girl of six years and always remembered the three days journey, when a blanket under the wagon took the place of hotel accommodations. Blazed trees were the only indication of a road at that time. The Weld family on their arrival secured land, which is still known as the Maria Weld farm. The deceased moved to Whitewater in 1894 and had since made her home here. The people of a younger generation and a little remnant of the people who were associated with this lady in her youth assembled to pay their last respects to the departed, when the body was laid to rest in the cemetery, where so many of those who knew the country in its beginning are now sleeping.

FOOTVILLE COUPLE TAKE VOWS TODAY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Footville, Nov. 24.—Miss Mabel Quinn, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Quinn, who reside two miles west of this village, and Sherman Brown, a highly esteemed young man who has lived all his life in this community, were united in marriage at three o'clock this afternoon at the bride's home. The Reverend John Larimore of the Christian church read the marriage service in the presence of the immediate families of the bride and groom.

The bride was charming in a gown of white voile. She was attended by Miss Maud Brown, sister of the groom, who wore a dress of blue voile. Henry Quinn, brother of the bride, was groomsman. Miss Irene Wells, the bride's cousin, was flower girl, and Mrs. Ruth Martin, also a cousin of the bride, played the wedding march.

Following the ceremony a wedding luncheon was served, Miss Daisy Weiss of this village, and Miss Daisy Jones of Janesville, acting as waitresses.

After a wedding journey Mr. and Mrs. Brown will reside on the Ernie Balis farm, west of this village.

ANTOINETTE HUEBSCH WEDS FRANCIS GAHAGAN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Evansville, Nov. 24.—One of the prettiest ceremonies ever solemnized in this city was the marriage of Miss Antoinette Huebsch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Huebsch of this city, to Francis Gahagan of Footville, at St. Paul's church this morning.

Promptly at nine o'clock as Miss Pauline Garry struck the opening chords of the wedding march, Misses Fern Ball and Gertrude Tierney as ribbon-bearers stretched the silken bands from the rear of the church to the altar railing, forming an aisle for the bridal party.

Preceding the party the flower girl, little Regina Knauss, strewed the path with roses, followed by the fourteen honorable attendants.

The bride entered escorted by her father and was met by the groom at the foot of the altar. Bride and groom were attended by Miss Leona Huebsch of this city, sister of the bride, and Charles Devins of Grand Forks, North Dakota.

Rev. Father McDermott read the marriage ceremony.

The bride was attired in a gown of white silk crepe meteor and trimmed with silk tatting, and a veil caught with pearl trimming, and carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas and lilies of the valley. The groom wore dark blue.

The gentlemen attendants were as follows, in the order named: Clare H. Wood, Beloit; Joseph Z. Paulson, John Hild, Richland Center; Joseph Collins, Antone Hild, Richland Center; Otto Jesinski, Stoughton.

The choir was most ably assisted on this occasion by Miss Lillian Gunnis of Milwaukee. The church was beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums and ferns. John Meely and Mark Collins acted as ushers.

Following the ceremony a five-course dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents, to fifty relatives and friends.

The bride is a popular young milliner of this city, a graduate of Lone Rock high school and a student of Holy Rosary academy of Racine.

The groom is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Devins of Footville. Last spring he completed a four years' term as officer on the battleship South Dakota and both have a host of friends here who extend congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Gahagan left today on a trip to Chicago and eastern cities. They will be at home at Footville after January 1, 1916.

W. C. T. U. Meet.

The W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. Charles Thompson on Madison street, Friday of last week. Although a stormy afternoon the house was comfortably full. Mrs. Brath led the devotional exercise. The class in "Rudiments of Law" was conducted by Miss Gelis. Mrs. Sharman gave an interesting talk on "The Temperance Leaders I Have Met." The songs sung by Miss Ethel Thompson were greatly enjoyed, also the social hour after the program, when the hostess served light refreshments.

This heat adds a new room!

The glassed-in porch provided with a genial AMERICAN Radiator makes a pleasant, well-warmed room that you never realized could be so attractive and comfortable. You are seeing the advent of many such glass-screened porches now-a-days. They make the most cheery and charming of bright rooms and it is significant that you never find anyone attempting to warm them by stove or hot-air furnace. This hard test of porch-room heating is invariably guaranteed perfect with an outfit of

AMERICAN RADIATORS & IDEAL BOILERS

Many are the comforts with AMERICAN Radiators, which occupy so little space themselves and are so easily installed they will heat and open up many a desirable space or room which otherwise would be chill and unoccupied. They are made in all sizes and shapes, and in many plain or pleasing designs for use in any oddly shaped out-of-the-way spaces, under windows, in corners, in curved bays—wide, narrow, tall, low—and are put in as easily in old buildings as in new ones.

They do away with the need of inner-doors, mantels and extra chimneys—a saving that more than offsets first cost of the outfit. Cottages, residences, stores, churches, schools, hotels, etc., whether in the city or country, with or without water main connections, are economically and evenly heated by IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators. They never rust or wear out. Any banker or real estate man will tell you that they are an investment, increasing the permanent property value and securing 10% to 15% greater rental.

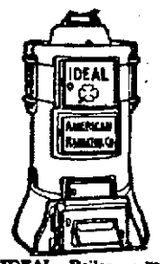

A No. 1-25-W IDEAL Boiler and 575 ft. of 38-in. AMERICAN Radiators, costing the owner $230, were used to heat this cottage. At this price the goods can be bought of any reputable, competent Fitter. This did not include cost of labor, pipe, valves, freight, etc., which vary according to climatic and other conditions.

Their annual fuel saving feature is a big item, too. Your coal bill is materially reduced by the great efficiency of IDEAL-AMERICAN heating. All local fuels can be used and the cheapest coals are made to deliver all the heat to you in clean, uniform, healthful warmth and comfort throughout your home.

Tell your architect that you want IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators for your new building and if you are adding to or remodeling your present building see that the heating contractor gives you his estimate based upon these successful, guaranteed goods—which have stood the test of time and hard service in a million homes and buildings all over the world.

Our large manufacturing volume and facilities enable us to produce IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators at lowest costs and still maintain in them the highest standards of material, workmanship and features. Iron prices are now most attractive and at this season you get the service of the most skilled fitters.

Send for free copy of our book "Ideal Heating" which covers the subject thoroughly, giving you valuable facts you should know. Write for it today.

IDEAL Boilers will supply ample heat on one charging of coal for 8 to 24 hours, depending on severity of weather. Every ounce of fuel is made to yield utmost results.

An unfailing, stationary Vacuum Cleaner—in sizes now at $150 up!

You should know about our ARCO WAND Vacuum Cleaner, for dustless, complete cleaning of rooms, furnishings, etc. Sits in basement or side room and cleans through iron suction pipe running to each floor. Easily put in OLD buildings. Fully GUARANTEED. Lasts as long as the building—like radiator heating. Send for catalog.

TURKEY DAY DINNER ARRANGED FOR JAPS

Delegation of Prominent Japanese Will Enjoy Typical Entertainment of American Holiday.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Pittsburgh, Nov. 24.—Baron Ei-Ishi Shibusawa and thirteen other prominent business and professional men of Japan, who are touring the United States, will arrive here tomorrow for a stay of two days, during which time they will be treated to a real Thanksgiving dinner at the residence of H. J. Heinz, an officer of the International Sunday School association, whose business brings the visitors to Pittsburgh. They will also see the University of Pittsburgh-State College football game, after which they will be shown representative electrical and steel making plants.

Baron Ei-Ishi Shibusawa is chairman of the Japanese committee to direct the world's Sunday school convention to be held in Japan at termination of the European war, and while here will meet W. M. Hartshorn of Boston.

COMPLAINT AGAINST RATES OF INDUSTRIAL INSURANCE WILL BE HEARD NEXT WEEK

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 24.—Neal Brown of Wausau, who has filed a complaint with the industrial and insurance departments against the bureau companies writing compensation insurance in which he charges that they have given discriminatory rates, said today that it would take all of next week to present the evidence. The case comes up for hearing before the insurance commissioner and the industrial commission on Nov. 30. Brown said today that there were so many records to be presented in the case that more time would be needed than originally anticipated.

PATENT IS SIGNED FOR NEW RAILROAD

Governor Philipp Approves of New Railway Which Will Run From Green Bay to Sheboygan.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Nov. 24—Governor Philipp has signed a railroad patent for the construction of a roadroad under the corporation name of the Green Bay and Eastern Railway company. It will run from Green Bay through Manitowoc to Sheboygan, a distance about seventy-five miles. The company is capitalized at fifty thousand dollars, the incorporators being residents of the towns along the proposed lines. The papers were sent to the Secretary of State's office for filing yesterday, but were approved as to legal form by Attorney General Owen before being signed by the governor.

THANKSGIVING.

Thursday is Thanksgiving. How many of you know that the first real Thanksgiving on this continent of ours was held in the year 1621, one year after the Pilgrims had landed in fear and trembling on the bleak New England coast. How the Indians, the native Americans, played their share in this feast brought the beasts of the forest, the birds of the air and joined with the little colony at Plymouth in giving thanks to the Great God, for the year's crops and the peace and scanty comfort found by the white brothers in this their chosen land of refuge.

This year Thanksgiving should have a special significance to the people of this nation. All Europe is at war with each other. Thousands of men will give up their lives in the trenches, on the seas and on the battlefields the day we celebrate with prayer and thanks for the bounteous crops and safety of our homes and firesides. Providence has watched over us, his people. We have escaped untold suffering. The products of the soil have been plentiful. The granaries are full, the herds are fat, the workships of our people are busy; true, they are making articles for foreign consumption, but thousands are given employment. The winter time approaches and yet we are prepared.

Let us all give thanks tomorrow for what the great Providence has provided for us and the blessings He has showered down upon us. Truly, we are His chosen people and it would be deepest ingratitude that would cause us to forget the Giver of all these blessings oh the day of thanks, set aside by our president, our governor and the custom of a century.

REAL FICTION.

Just at the present time there is a certain class of news writers that are giving to the reading public the choicest sort of fiction. Stories of wonderful battles in the air, under the sea, on land and even in the very bowels of the earth, are graphically described by clever men who never really see anything nearer the war zone than some of the concentration camps or perhaps a parade of the soldiers who were being forwarded to the fighting front. So carefully guarded has been the movement of the military and naval forces of both the central powers and the allies, that one is led to believe almost anything that is presented in cold type as genuine facts. News agencies, special press writers for certain yellow journals, meet this demand for sensation by graphic tales of occurrences, based perhaps on a few facts, but so overdrawn that the sympathies of the readers are brought up to a fever pitch, either as a pro-German or as an anti-German sympathizer. The Gazette is supplied by the Associated Press news service. This great news-gathering organization really attempts to give the American public the news as it really exists without coloring. It is doing its utmost to be fair to both the central powers and the allies. It is true that from their geographical position more news from the allies reaches the American public than from the interior of Europe, but special representatives of this great news association in Berlin and Vienna, do their best to send accurate dispatches of what really happens. These accounts do not bear the flowery language of the signed statements of men who never heard a gun shot off, many of whom are located in this country, and merely write glowing tales from dispatches, coloring them to meet the demands of the readers. They have a twang of truth in them and until we know better they must be taken for the real facts.

TIME FOR GIVING.

The winter season approaches. The time for opening your purse for the sake of charity and the aid of families less fortunate than your own, has come. The high school students are today distributing numerous baskets with contents designed for the Thanksgiving dinners in many a home where, through necessity, no provision has been made. It is a noble work and one which should be encouraged. However, there is such a thing as over-doing this giving. Unfortunately there are many who would take advantage of charitably disposed persons and seek to secure food, clothing and financial aid when it is not deserved. Others who hesitate to make known their wants, and these two extremes must be met and a center reached which adjusts itself to the needs of both.

The Associated Charities is admirably situated to care for this work. It is suggested that all the charitable organizations in the city keep in close touch with this organization so that provisions and the necessities of life are not duplicated in one household and forgotten in another. It is a great work this caring for those who are unfortunate and one which opens the hearts of many. However, to do the work well and in justice to the real sufferers, it is wise that concerted action be taken through one organized body of workers. This is the time for giving. The Christmas tide is near at hand and many will need aid. Children will look in vain for the visit of Santa if the good people of the city do not come to Santa's aid. Do it systematically and by concerted action bring about results without waste of time or material. Take time by the forelock and prepare for the day of giving. Do not wait too long. Do not need to be urged to do your share by continual nagging and requests for financial aid, but come forward and contribute your mite, even though it be no bigger than the "Widow's", they will all be acceptable.

No need to go meatless in Janesville the next few weeks at least, as long as the meat war is in progress. One Monroe man came here, bought a supply, went home, figured it up and found he had saved his fare to Janesville and return over local prices. Why not organize a refund sale perhaps?

Whether he knows it or not, Brother Taft is a far bigger man out of the presidential chair, even in the minds of his political enemies, than he was when listening to ill-chosen advisers down at Washington. He is one of the most prominent of the ex-presidents we have had in years.

Governor Philipp has announced that the Wisconsin delegation will go to the national republican convention uninstructed for any candidate, but ready to co-operate with any organized effort to nominate a good, sound, safe republican for the office of president.

The European savant who says that the liquor of the oyster is the only part of the bivalve fit for consumption, must have become mixed between champagne in thoughts before making his assertion.

Is it possible that the rains of this summer have been caused by the excessive bombardments over across the Atlantic by the warriors of Europe? Some scientist please answer.

What the turkey thinks about Thanksgiving is immaterial, but what the consumer things about the price and supply is material to say the least.

In Chicago recently a man jumped thirteen stories and suffered from nothing in the line of injuries but a severe shock. Many a man has broken his heart when refused by his lady love.

With cupid acting as cady, Woodrow Wilson proved an adept at the old game of golf with a wife as the prize at the end of the season, this past summer.

Speaking of preparedness, how about Wisconsin starting to prepare for next year's football season by installing a new coach and new methods of handling athletics?

Going back to Mexico to stand trial for the murder of Madero would not be the kind of triumphal entry in his native land that Huerta has been picturing himself as making.

What has become of the old-fashioned man who wore a watch chain made from the hair of his deceased wife?

In making up your list of martyrs to duty do not overlook the woman who bends over the red-hot stove three times every day.

The fact that many men fail is not so much due to the fact that they put all their eggs in one basket as it is to the misfortune which gives the average man but one egg.

A smart man is one who realizes that he is too old for the women to pay much attention to him.

When an unmarried woman begins to wear her hair in a knot the size of a doorknob that means she has quit hoping.

When a woman talks a good deal about her servants it means she hasn't had servants very long.

Another way for a man to achieve a reputation for cleverness and ability is to drink too much. It is said of every drunkard that he would make a great success if he could let liquor alone.

If you proceed upon the theory that it pays to be square, you will have nothing to regret if you fail to collect.

But, as a matter of fact, no drunkard is as smart as the man who doesn't drink at all.

A college professor has arisen to explain the mystery of the curve ball. Which is all right. But if you need curves in your business you will have to learn to throw them yourself.

In a country neighborhood a man is considered able if he can pass the examination required for a teacher's certificate.

Do not attach too much importance to distinction. A man can achieve a certain degree of it by becoming the father of an eighteen-pound baby.

The fact that a dog sticks to its master is, in many cases, no credit to its intelligence.

The rage for exposure on the stage should not, however, be construed by Father as an endorsement of his habit of sitting around in his sock feet.

The average man's idea of a good job is one that permits him to retire for the night without first attending to the formality of winding the alarm clock.

Pate de fois gras I detest;
Buckwheat cakes and good pork sausage—
That's the chuck that I like best.

For when I try to get any at all,
The job is frenzied enough for me.

Don't want to ride in no gas buggy,
Don't want to get in no dress suit,
Don't want to tip no hotel waiter,
Don't want to be no rich galoot;
Don't want to risk my reputation
By hoarding up an awful pile,
That's why I stay in lowly station
And refuse to put on style.

Don't want to be in no "400,"
Don't want to dine out with no monk,
Nor dance with an educated donkey,
Or have lace curtains round my bunk.
Don't want to wear no talcum powder,
No masculine corset for my form;
Seven dollar suit's my limit,
To keep out all the wintry storm.
Ain't a-worryin' 'bout life insurance,
The kind I've got ain't in the strife;
For I'm insured in the old reliable
One that's called The Simple Life.

Good Will.

When I see a feller grouchy,
Feelin' blue and kind of ill,
Lookin' in the darkest corner,
Sort o' trustin' to a pill—

I just feel like goin' over,
Sayin' "Let's forgit it, Bill;
What you need to cheer your system
Is a capsule of Good Will."

An' when I see folks at gatherin's,
Pullin' this-away and that,
Says I, "Taint brains they're needin',
It's some Good Will in their hat."

That jest gits the thing a-rollin';
Cuts the friction down, I guess,
Like the oil you put on engines—
Makes the high resistance less.

Then, when I see folks a-boostin',
Helpin' this old world along,
Says I, "Well, I bet you twenty They've got Good Will for their song."

An' say, don't it make a feller
Feel so good down in his heart
When he knows he isn't stingy
An' he's done his honest part?

Gee!' I wish I had all the souls
That folks think so small and chill;
I'd jest hang 'em on a clothes line
In the sunshine of Good Will.

I 'spect they'd swell, and swell, and swell,
An' jest bleach so white and fair,
There'd be no room for anything
'Ceptin' Good Will everywhere.

The Daily Novelette

The Surprise.

Up the hill they charged,
The valiant fifty hundred,
O'er the marshy waste,
The cannons boomed and thundered.

The allied troops were creeping carefully 'cross the crepuscular crags.

At last their well laid plans to surprise General von Woofenstock's intrenchments seemed on the verge of fruition, the fruition of the verge.

Bombs whistled overhead, but not any definite tune.

Suddenly the crouching creepers started, and a thrill ran through them.

They had seen something!

They had seen a long line of hooded cameras on a hilltop.

"Moving picture machines!" they cried joyously, and dashed as one man into the open, confident that the following week their faces and uniforms would be seen in every movie house in the world.

Bang! Bang! Crash!

Out of the long line of gattling guns disguised as moving picture cameras their burst fire and lead, and not a single would-be surpriser returned to tell the tale, except the single one that told it.

It was another great tactical victory for General von Woofenstock!

JURY WILL RETURN A SEALED VERDICT IN DURESS ACTION

Mr. Oestreich asked if his proceedings with Mrs. Abraham on the afternoon of January 5 were done deliberately. The answer was, "Yes."

Jury Has Questions.

The jurymen began asking questions then. H. L. Moseley wanted to know why the matter was not laid over for settlement until the next day as asked by Mrs. Abraham and as testified by Mr. Cunningham. The latter said that after Mrs. Abraham asked this they went on talking about other features of the case and led up to the point where Mrs. Abraham announced that she had a certificate of deposit for $1,600 and that she would go up to her home and get it and settle then.

E. J. Fluktiger wanted to know the average daily sales Attorney Oestreich objected to the question and drew forth a reprimand from Judge Turner to the effect that, "This court and this jury are the ones trying this case and any information the jurors desire, they are going to get it. I myself, ask information on different points and they are just as much at liberty to do so also."

After calling Mr. Nolan to the stand for short testimony the defense rested its case and arguments on Mr. Cunningham's motion were heard.

Charges of Jury Fixing.

A sensation was sprung in the Abraham vs. Cunningham and Nolan case late Tuesday afternoon and for a few moments following the adjournment until this morning the air was filled with rumors of jury fixing and charges against a young attorney of the city. There was also another individual concerned in the alleged tampering, but upon investigation the startler proved but one of air bubble nature.

The haste of Judge Turner to clear the court room at the close of the afternoon's session was the first intimation that trouble was brewing. The jury had been excused for the night and had left. A hasty conference of attorneys was held. Judge Turner, Attorneys Mouat and Oestreich for the plaintiff and Cunningham and Sutherland of the defense, with District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie, Clerk of the Court Jesse Earle, Court Reporter Francis Grant and several others with the accused went into a star chamber session.

Here, upon the alleged charges being presented, the air bubble exploded. The accused lawyer exonerated himself to the satisfaction of all interested parties and announced that he knew none of the jurors, had never met them nor had he ever seen any of them until they appeared in the case.

The charges of the near sensation was that the lawyer and another had approached a juryman and had in some manner attempted to instill in him prejudice against the defense. The charges, the secret session disclosed, were without foundation.

Aside from the premature attempt to show jury tampering matter, the most important legal phase of the trial during the afternoon was Mr. Cunningham's motion to have the action against him dismissed. The jury was excused while the defendant presented his motion and arguments, which were opposed by Attorney Oestreich. Both lawyers talked at some length, citing law points and precedents, and Judge Turner interrupted each with questions which went to the heart of the situation.

Wife Under Crossfire.

Mrs. Abraham ended her testimony shortly after the afternoon session convened. She was cross-examined both by Mr. Cunningham and by Mr. Sutherland relative to the document drawn up in the former's office at the federal building which transformed her husband's entire interest and holdings in his partnership with Mr. Nolan to Mr. Nolan. She neither approved nor objected to the verbal text of the agreement, she testified. Further, she did not read it over, but had heard it read and knew its contents and understood them fully.

To Attorney Sutherland, after the objection had been overruled, she admitted that it was her money that had been used by her husband, Guernsey Abraham, to form the grocery store partnership with Nolan.

Desk Sergeant William Gower and Chief of Police Peter D. Champion were each called to the witness stand. It was brought out by Gower that Abraham had not been imprisoned in a cell at the city hall station but had been confined in the women's quarters, that he was not in the cell at the time Gower left the station to answer a hurry call on River street. He testified that Mrs. Abraham's condition was nothing out of the ordinary aside from the fact that she had been weeping and that, so far as he knew, she was evidently all right and displayed no other appearances of distress. She talked much in low tones with her husband.

Champion Testifies.

Chief Champion recounted the incidents of the morning of January 2, 1915, on which he sought Abraham on a call from Mr. Cunningham and of the methods employed by himself and Mr. Cunningham, in the latter's office, with Mr. Nolan, to secure a confession and admittance of guilt from Abraham, and who was there. The chief stated that he had been in the office about five minutes and arose to go, but was invited to "Sit down and stay awhile" by Mr. Cunningham.

Relative to the checks alleged to have been drawn by Abraham, Mr. Champion said that the man said he drew them to pay his house rent, doctor bills, and other indebtednes. He also testified that they were all drawn on Miller Bros.' pool room.

On the matter of the cash alleged to have been taken by Abraham the chief related that he confessed taking as much as two dollars on some days, again sums ranging from fifty cents to two dollars, and on some occasions as much as five dollars. At first, it was testified, Abraham denied taking anything but a dime to get a shave.

Abraham's Confession.

Regarding anything being said about an attorney for Abraham the police chief remembered nothing. He said the plaintiff's husband admitted taking groceries, but made no answer as to why he did it.

Although it was mentioned that there was a shortage in the store of about $1,500 and that Mr. Nolan was willing to settle for the sum of $1,000 and Abraham's half interest, the latter, the chief testified, didn't think there was this much shortage.

After taking Abraham to the police station he was there until nine o'clock that evening. At this time Chief Champion testified, he telephoned District Attorney Dunwiddie and asked him whether or not the man was to be held. The district attorney said "No."

He stated that his treatment of Abraham was no different than that accorded any other person under the circumstances of admitting the cashing of checks, the taking of money and of goods. Cunningham, he said, "went after" Abraham in no way harsh, but to get the truth. The chief admitted urging the man to tell the truth and that he charged him with lying regarding checks, money and goods, but never, at any time, made a threat aside from telling Abraham that he was in a position to be prosecuted. Nothing in the conversation, he said, verged to the mentioning of state prison or penitentiary.

Abraham had been expecting the trouble, Champion said, as was shown in his admitting having consulted an attorney and also on his own statement. Attorney Oestreich examined the chief shortly regarding the amount of money purported to have been taken daily by Abraham.

Abraham Incompetent.

Guernsey Abraham's visit to the stand was short. He was called by the counsel for the plaintiff, but was declared incompetent by Judge Turner when the defense objected to his testimony being entered in the case.

Mr. Nolan was called to the stand as an adverse witness. Deliberations ensued and the jury was excused. Later Mr. Nolan was permitted to relate his story and the substance of the conversation in Mr. Cunningham's office on Jan. 5. He denied anything being said regarding sending Abraham to state's prison or the penitentiary and denied further any words of like substance. Cross examination failed to make the witness waver from his previous testimony.

LOAN SCHOOL'S USE

Council Authorizes Loan of $6,400 to the Board of Education Tuesday.

Mayor James A. Fathers was authorized by the council at their regular meeting Tuesday to make a loan of $6,400 for the board of education to meet immediate expenses of the schools. The council received the request from the board and then passed a resolution for the loan, which is the third granted to the board of education this year, to be taken from the budget appropriation for next year. The total loans amount to $13,600. If the tax books are closed within the expected time, it is thought that no further loans will be necessary, as the appropriation money will be placed to the credit of the school fund by the time more money is needed. From the present indications there will be no need of loans in any of the street departments.

Besides passing the loan resolution the council passed the amounts due for labor and material, amounting to $1901.52. The salary list for the city officials for November was allowed.

The appointment of C. S. Harmon as special police officer, with pay, by Mayor Fathers, was confirmed.

Superintendent of Streets P. J. Goodman was ordered to repair with crushed stone, Eastern avenue, from the Chicago and Northwestern tracks to a point 150 feet west. Repairs were also ordered on Chatham street from Mineral Point avenue to Elizabeth street. A brick crosswalk was ordered across Western avenue on the west side of High street.

The report of the board of public works on the amount due to G. D. Cannon for contract for curb and gutter work on various streets was received and filed. The amount was given as $182.12. Certificates were issued for the amounts against the property benefited by the improvement.

The council authorized the purchase of five hundred feet of fire hose for the fire department to replace hose used by the street department.

The city engineer C. V. Kerch, was instructed to order equipment for the construction of a storm sewer on North River street from Wall to West Bluff street.

JURY DECIDES CASE IN FAVOR OF LANE

Verdict Reached for Defendant to Amount of $20 in Automobile Collision Law Suit.

The case of A. W. Layng, plaintiff, versus John E. Lane, defendant, which has been on trial in the circuit court before Judge Grimm for the past three days, was decided by the jury today in its answers to special questions, in favor of Mr. Lane.

The case was brought for damages as a result of a collision between automobiles owned by the parties, September 20, 1914, near Rockton, Ill. Mr. Lane and his family were coming from the city of Rockford, while the plaitiff, with three companions, was going from the city of Beloit to Rockford, his home. The collision occurred near the Gayton farm, in the township of Rockton, a few miles south of the city of Beloit. The plaintiff claimed the defendant was driving recklessly and turned his car into the car of the plaintiff, damaging it to an extent approximating $600. The defendant claimed that the plaintiff ran his car into the machine of the defendant, damaging it to an amount approximating $175. In the answer of the defendant, after denying the allegations of negligence made by the plaintiff, he pleaded a counter claim, asking a judgment for $175 for damage to his car.

A number of witnesses were examined for both parties. The case was given to the jury about ten o'clock this today, and their verdict was received about two o'clock this afternoon. The jury apparently reached a compromise as to the amount of damages. In the answers to the special questions they found that the plaintiff suffered no damage, and the defendant $20 damage.

Thos. S. Nolan, who appeared for the defendant, gave notice when the special verdict was read, that he would file a written motion for judgment in due course. Edward H. Ryan of this city appeared for the plaintiff.

LONG TERMS DEALT TO FOUR TRANSIENTS

Four Strangers Are Given Thirty Days Flat in the Municipal Court This Afternoon.

"Keep away from Janesville."

That is the secretive "hunch" and well meant advice that is traveling around trampdom these days, for the police have made it very plain that Chicago transients are not desired in this city. This morning there were four brought before the court on charges of vagrancy and drunkenness or a combination of both.

an Murphy, a prize fight follower, was arrested for begging. He pleaded guilty to vagracy. Joe Fischer, Chicago; William Logan, also of Chicago, and John Morrison of the same place pleaded guilty to drunkenness and vagrancy and all four were given thirty days under the commitment law.

CIVIC LEAGUE GIVES PICTURES TO Y. M. C. A.

Four new pictures are the newest gifts that have been received in the boys' department at the Young Men's Christian association. The Janesville Civic League presented these gifts and they add to the apearance of the boys' room very much. The boys and officers of the association appreciate this gift from the league and are very thankful for the pictures.

News comes from down Boston way that Rabbit Maranville is playing basketball this fall. A year ago Manager Stallings of the Braves put a ban on the Rabbit playing basketball because he feared his shortstop might suffer injury. Now he does not seem to protest. Can it be that Stallings doesn't care what happens to Maranville?

Clark Griffith is not going to be contrary to the general disposition of other team managers in the matter of shortening the coming training season. He figures that a ball team can be whipped into line in less than a month and that is about all the time he proposes to devote to training next spring, thus adopting the same reforms that Managers Jennings, Rowland and others have arranged for.

Selecting a successor for Fred Clarke is going to keep the Pittsburgh club busy and prove a tough job. Many names have been suggested and many applications made, but as yet Owner Dreyfuss has not announced his selection and he probably will not until the meeting of the league is held some time in December. Dooin, who is now a catcher with the Giants, has been mentioned, as have been numerous others, none of whom are, however, apt to get the appointment. It is more likely that Bill Hinchman, who was a successful manager in the American Association, will be given a chance, while Catcher Gibson, too, may be considered.

Clarke was a most capable leader. Of course, in the days that he was a playing manager he was of special help to his team, for as a player he had few equals. But Clarke did not lose his grip as a manager when he handled his team from the bench, and no one realizes the fact that his shoes will be hard to fill better than Barney Dreyfuss, with whom Clarke had been identified for many years.

It is said, but also denied, that the New York Giants can be bought for $1,500,000, while it would require at least $2,000,000 to locate a new plant on Manhattan Island. Sinclair, who, it is said, will back the new Fed club there, is a shrewd business man, and if the Giants were for sale at the figure mentioned he would not hesitate to buy them. But it is not likely that the Giants are for sale at any such figure. It is the one team which has made enormous profits for many years, and when McGraw again gets a winner there will be no trouble making money with the giants.

Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight champion, is not helping his popularity by allowing a lot of secondraters to stay a limited number of rounds with him when it is apparent to every one that he could put his opponents away with a punch. The thing of picking up easy money without having to put forth any effort is not a good thing for the boxing game, and the clubs which tolerate such exhibitions are apt to find their attendance falling off at an alarming rate. The pugilistic game is in a fair way of regaining its popularity, but even these limited bouts should be kept on the level, for the best interests of the sport.

When Frank Chance quit the New York Yankees season before last, he vowed he was through with baseball forever. But a season's idleness seems to have generated the baseball germ once more and he now is contemplating accepting a position in the Pacific Coast league as manager. Chance has modified his avowal by insisting that he referred only to the east when he left the New York job.

TWO ELEVENS READY FOR GRIDIRON FRAY

Alumni and Tigers to Play Football Game, Last of Season, Tomorrow.

Both the Janesville Alumni and the Janesville Tigers, the latter being composed of the best players of the high school, are in fit condition for their game to be played tomorrow morning at the fair grounds. The Alumni have had several workouts, perfecting plays with which they expect to baffle their young but better trained opponents.

The Tigers will be represented by an eleven that is at least thirty per cent stronger than the high team which he Alumni defeated in a practice game. Shifts have been made in the backfield and the line bolstered by the addition of several heavy men of good ability. The Alumni will have the players of the teams in the years of 1912 and 1913, with an exceptionally strong line. Falter, star of the 1913 team, will be in the backfield at halfback, along with "Andy" Connell, the fleet-footed back and end.

Weather conditions being favorable, a good crowd is expected to witness the game in preparation for a "tackle" of the Thanksgiving turkey.

TEN TEAMS REMAIN TO FINISH GRIND

Two Teams Drop Out Today, Leaving Ten to Continue In Competition for Honors.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Two teams—Young and Keopsky and Corry and Carmen—dropped out of the six day bicycle race today, leaving ten of the fifteen original teams to finish the grind.

The riders were nearly seventy miles behind the world's record at the end of 105th hour, having covered 1,993 miles and three laps. Nine teams were tied for leadership, Ort and Madenna trailing a lap behind them. They were three laps behind at midnight, but regained their lost ground during a series of spirited sprints. Young was obliged to quit the race because of a damaged ankle and Carmen was forced out because of illness.

MARQUETTE ELEVEN PLAYS ST. THOMAS TEAM

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 24. — The Marquette eleven today finished training for tomorrow's game with St. Thomas of St. Paul, Minn., with a light workout. The players are in good condition for the annual Turkey Day fray with the St. Paul team. Pope is lacking on the St. Thomas team, but it is expected that they will repeat their performances of last year and come out of the game with the bigger score.

The St. Thomas eleven arrived this afternoon and had a light workout at Athletic park. They were accompanied by the military band and about 100 rooters.

Thanksgiving

AGAIN another year has rolled around and the wonderful spirit of Thanksgiving reigns in every home just as it did in the Pilgrim settlements three hundred years ago.

Just as the brave Pilgrims gave thanks to The Almighty for the bountiful harvest the year brought them so should we return thanks, not only for the harvests, but for the many other good things that have blessed this great land of ours.

Let us then all return our thanks tomorrow in the manner best fitting.

THE WHITE SISTER FILM MASTERPIECE

Picture Version With Viola Allen Equals Stage Success.

When the family of F. Marion Crawford urged Viola Allen to appear in a film that should immortalize Crawford's masterpiece "The White Sister," which had such an unprecedented run on the stage with Miss Allen starring, they showed keen foresight. The stage production is now only a mimory, but the picture production, which fully equals it, will go on delighting thousands for years.

As seen at the Majestic last night, "The White Sisters" is the most impressive sort of film. It is a picture that, on account of the absorbing, vital story on which it is based, and the wonderful acting of Viola Allen and the supporting cast, is bound to be a success.

It is announced that the run of this production here has been extended for another day, to include Friday.

Myrtle Stedman ewars a Norwegian dress as Solveig in "Peer Gynt," which owes its accuracy to its being made by a Norwegian woman who was in the service of the royal family of Sweden before the partition of the two kingdoms. She appears with Cyril Maude at the Apollo tonight.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

Viola Allen Sweeps Public Off Its Feet.

Have you seen Viola Allen in "The White Sister?" This is what everyone now is asking his neighbor.

When a play makes such a success that it is the first topic of conversation that enters the mind when two friends meet, you may know it has some genuine attraction, that it is irresistible.

Every once in a long time there is a play that not only succeeds in the ordinary way, but has some great fundamental human element that sweeps the public off its feet.

That is what "The White Sister," Essanay's six-act photoplay, written by F. Marion Crawford has done. It is the talk of the hour. Critics who saw the play before its release predicted a wonderful run. It has surpassed all expectations. It is the rage; it is the fad of the day. "The White Sister" is now running at the Majestic, starting at 2:30, 4:00, 7:30 and 9:00 daily.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

Bernhardt's Leading Man Plays in "White Sister."

Ernest Maupain, who played for many years opposite Sarah Bernhardt, succumbed to the motion picture camera and made his debut into photoplay work with Essanay in "The White Sister," he plays with Viola Allen. In spite of his many opportunities to go back on the speaking stage, he found the work in "The White Sister" so fascinating that Essanay induced him to remain. In "The White Sister" he takes a powerful role. This photoplay version of F. Marion Crawford's is shown here at the Majestic, at prices of 10c and 20c in the evenings, and 10c in the afternoons.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

Real Fighting In War Helps Actor In Film.

Years ago Richard Travers buried himself with other soldiers down in the south of Africa—in the British campaign. Now, an Essanay actor, he enacts the role of the Italian officer who is commissioned to go to Africa. Because of his actual experience in this campaign he s enabled to put wonderful realism into this part in "The White Sister." He directed the soldiers in the rehearsals because his actual experience in South Africa familiarized him with the technique of war. Mr. Travers, who supports Viola Allen in "The White Sister," has been a British soldier, surgeon, Canadian fur hunter and stock company actor. This photoplay is shown here at the Majestic theatre now.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"Blindness of Virtue" Now Is Coming Here.

At last the great moral drama, "The Blindness of Virtue," is produced in film. Essanay took this great task upon itself and has just announced its release. It will be shown here at the Majestic theatre next week with an unusual cast, headed by Edna Mayo and Bryant Washburn. Thousands of persons saw this play on the speaking stage and thousands more will see it in films. A special company was dedicated to this great screen production.

AT THE PRINCESS.

"The Queen of Hearts" on Thursday.

A gambler always "on the square" save in the immediate environs of his establishment where business demands questionable methods, is a well-known figure on the American screen. He holds the same idolized position in the hearts of some people as the indomitable detective among the motion picture goers of Europe.

And so it seems sreasonable to assume that "The Queen of Hearts," a drama that boasts of just such a gambler, will easily ride on the topmost crest of popularity with the many folk who will patronize the Princess tomorrow.

Herbert Rawlinson's suitability for this role is obvious to those who have seen his work in other pictures. He invests this character with such a pleasing degree of gentlemanliness and keen wit that he is continually the center of attraction. His support consists of such popular players as Anna Little, William Worthington and others of less note, including Barney Furey, Jack Wells and Cora-Belle Bonnie. Under the direction of Mr. Worthington the players have appeared to good advantage in their respective parts.

The settings of the play are as good if not better than any that have come from the studios at Universal City

...is the l... ever been down... ally she is the s... ine—but as Beck... on general devilt... all intensifies her talen... ...s.

"The Case of Becky" was more than a one star cast. Theodore Roberts rivals Miss Sweet for the lead and Carlyle Blackwell's work is such as to entitle him to full mead of credit. And then James Neil is quite deserving also. The play was well produced and mounted.

JANESVILLE FAVORITE SEEN AT PRINCESS

Charles Winninger, Now a Movie Star, Still Up to Old Pranks.

Charles Winninger, member of the ever-popular Winninger Bros. Stock company, appeared before a Janesville audience last night in a very quiet way. That queer resounding Dutch brogue was sadly lacking of course, but his funny capers were all painted upon the screen in the same old uproariously funny way. "Mr. Flirt In Wrong," the name of the piece in which Mr. Winninger played, proved to be a clean, wholesome comedy and stood the popular Janesville favorite out in truly characteristic style.

"The Mystery of the Locked Door" was also shown, featuring Dorothy Phillips, and kept the audience up to a high pitch of mystified suspense.

Goat Getters.

What gets our goat in our spiritual life is that we constantly meet up with people who, when they can't find other people to stand for their misfortunes, charge the whole business up to the Lord.—Houston Post.

AT THE APOLLO.

"The Killarney Girls" on Monday.

Writing of the Killarney Girls' program, Manager Chas. F. Horner of the Redpath at Kansas City says:

"I have heard them often and I believe that this company is the most unique and original, as well as one of the most artistic and altogether most satisfying musical and literary aggregations in the lyceum today. From the first song of their remarkable program to the last one, these young ladies control the situation. They produce the same effect on the audience that the masterful orator does. With the first number they create an atmosphere.

"The program is connected. There are no sinking spells, no letting down of interest. This is not a conglomeration of "hit" and "miss" stunts, but each number of the program bears some relation to some other number.

Of course the program is made up of Irish legends, stories and musicals. There is much that is romantic, sentimental, and much that is dramatic about it. Each young lady is an individual artist. They are handsome, attractive girls and they are most beautifully costumed.

"Best of all they have the real lyceum ideals and, after the Killarney Girls have been to a city, the people know that six great big hearted, big souled, wholesome young ladies have been among them."

AT THE APOLLO.

Twenty Thousand at "Carmen" Bull-Fight.

For the filming of the bull fighting scenes of "Carmen," in which Geraldine Farrar, the celebrated opera prima donna is appearing for the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, a special permit was granted by the Mayor of Los Angeles, and the occasion made the official public reception of Miss Farrar to the city.

Twenty thousand people, all in Spanish costume, banked the sides of the arena. Miss Farrar was welcomed by the mayor, Charles F. Sebastian. Several bull fights were then given in her honor by the professional Toreadores before the filming of the scenes for the production which will be seen here. During the taking of these scenes, one of the bull fighters was tossed in the air by the bull and then thrown on the ground, apparently gored to death, before the eyes of all present. The other Toreadores drove the bull away and the professional leaped to his feet apparently unharmed. He was brave enough to bow to the cheering thousands before falling unconscious in the arms of a companion.

Indiana Man's Kidney Troubles Disappear

"After suffering many months from kidney trouble," writes W. R. Fox, of Noblesville, Ind., "and after having tried many remedies and prescriptions, I purchased a box of Foley Kidney Pills. They not only did me more good than any other remedy I had ever used, but they positively set my kidneys right. Other members of my family have used same with similar results."

From every state in the Union come unsolicited letters telling of satisfactory results from Foley Kidney Pills. When the kidneys become clogged up, get sluggish, and filter and strain out of the blood only part of the poisonous waste matter, the balance remains and circulates through the system, uric acid forms, and swollen, painful joints and muscles are the result.

The Heart of Night Wind

A Story of the Great Northwest

By VINGIE E. ROE

Illustrations by Ray Walters

Copyright by Dodd, Mead and Company.

"Hush!" she said warningly.

She slipped a hand inside her own gown and showed a corner of the soiled packet of proofs that Siletz had guarded for so many days, the packet that she knew instinctively meant harm to Sandry, that must never go east!

It was then that Sandry was to behold the iron in this creature of softness, of faithfulness and of service. With a cry that chilled his blood in its savage wildness, the girl leaped across the silent form in the shabby habit, tore Sandry's gun from his hand and fired twice before he could seize her and wfest the weapon from her. Both shots went wild.

"What would you do?" he cried aghast.

Siletz fought for the gun like a wild thing. Then, as he held it high above her reach, she fell on her knees, clasping his limbs, her face upturned and transfigured with the lust for blood.

"Kill them!" she panted desperately, "kill them both! Blood for Preacher and she would ruin you! Shoot them, Sandry, shoot them—or give me the gun!"

Shuddering, Sandry covered her savage eyes with his hand. Their reversion sickened him. But she shook him loose, crying for death.

"Kill them both, for they will ruin you if they go free! She's got the packet. Kill her and get the packet!"

"What's this?" he cried hoarsely.

"Things she has written about you—a—letter to a man by the name of Musseldorn!"

Slowly Sandry's face went white beneath its grime as he raised his eyes and looked at Poppy Ordway.

She returned his gaze.

Then— "True," she said, "that's why I went east. I cannot lose you, Walter. There was danger from that wild creature there, though you did not know it, and I was determined to make sure. Fair means or foul—I must win. And there's no law for a genius. I know and you know that you are—"

"Guilty!" he said, throwing up his head.

Then Sandry dropped his eyes to Siletz and spoke as if he obeyed some compelling power, some urge to justify himself before her.

"I answer to the Right Law. I obeyed the ancient Right Law, little S'letz, and I have no regrets."

"I know!" cried Siletz, "I know!" the smoke was so dense that the actors in this drama could scarcely see each other's faces, but they took no note of it. The climbing roar had shut them apart in a sound-made silence and they did not know it. Only Hampden, edging sidewise, was alive to the possibilities of the moment. He saw the gun hanging in Sandry's hand, forgotten. He saw Siletz devouring his face with her blazing eyes of passion. He saw his moment and took it.

With one great bound he flung himself high in the air, leaped the space between and came down with his great weight upon the shoulders of the other man, clutching for back and throat, drawing the one to him in a grip of iron, pushing the other away.

Sandry went down like a reed, and as his knees buckled under him there was an ominous snap. The bone of his right leg, newly healed and fragile, gave way under the strain.

As the two men fell, both guns, the one in Sandry's hand and the one in his trousers band, tumbled loosely apart. Siletz, clinging still to Sandry's knees, was borne down with them. As they rolled over she tore herself from under them and with two sweeps of her outspread arms gathered the guns. Then she sprang up, drawing back a pace, her eyes like fire, and deliberately sought for a chance to kill Hampden.

But the men were a struggling mass of turning, twisting, writhing flesh, each so wound about the other that to shoot one meant the other's death as well. Over and over they rolled, now almost on the silent form under the ferns, now pushing Poppy Ordway back into the low spruces. And all the time Siletz followed them with the moving muzzle of the gun, her face a mask of fury and the passion of the primal woman who battles for her mate.

"Sandry," she cried, "lie flat! Lie flat!"

From under Hampden's arm that was choking the breath from his lungs the owner saw that slim figure of doom and strove to cry out. At last he got his voice for a moment.

"Siletz!" he rasped, "don't shoot. I command you, don't kill—" But the bark of the gun drowned his words. She was firing around them.

With the first shot Hampden, remembering the guns that he had failed to get, felt his flesh rise on his body and he loosened his hold, shook off Sandry and got to his feet, panting, fighting mad, his eyes red and awful.

With the courage of the raging bull he made straight for Siletz, who fired point blank at him. He took the ball in his shoulder and spun half round. The girl pulled the trigger again, got an empty snap, threw the weapon away and raised the other.

"Siletz!" shrieked Sandry from the ground, "for my sake stop!"

It was a command, a cry of ownership, and it went straight to that part of her nature which had obeyed for generations. She hesitated, holding the man across the barrel.

As for Hampden, he stood, wavering drunkenly, chuckling in his throat, a thing of horror in his malevolence.

"Well," he rasped dryly, "I guess it's just as well. I'll leave you to yer pleasant dreams. I sail fer Panama—Hawaii—the Yukon. I'm done."

He turned on his heel, to stride away into the pall of smoke toward the north. In one moment he came rushing back to run down to the west.

For the first time the three people left together remembered the fires, saw the thickened smoke, heard the roar that had made them scream their tragic words, unconsciously, for the last half hour.

It was all around them, that pouring mass of smoke, and it was black, as if the fires were near. Hampden's huge figure tore past them toward the narrow point of the ridge, then came lurching back, a long, red streamer staining his bedraggled shirt.

"My God!" he shouted hoarsely. "We're hemmed in! It's on every side! We'll burn like rats!"

He flung a tragic arm to the dusky heavens. Poppy Ordway found her voice. She darted forward and pounced upor him, again with that subtle suggestion of the feline race, gripping his arm with fingers of steel.

"What do you mean?" she cried.

"I mean that we've ben playin' our own little game out to its conclusion like fools, while a bigger one has ben playin' itself out. We're in a cup—waitin'."

There was something sinister about that last word.

"When this damned wind sucks up a little harder it'll draw th' fires together an' we'll roast alive."

He ceased, panting, moistening his lips. Then presently a hideous grin distorted his features.

"Who wins now?" he said. "Brains—brains! An' ex'cutive ability—an' cunnin'! I guess I win at last!"

From somewhere up behind the lowering canopy a rumbling thunder drowned his words, as if all the rocks of the tortured hills were split asunder in the heat. When it had died away he turned to Sandry where he sat, pale under his grime, a prey to a thousand feelings.

"I've hated you like poison ever sence I first clapped eyes on your Johnny Eastern face. You thought you had me beat—and so did she," he jerked his head at Poppy, "but I'm too great a force for both of you. She's the greatest woman in all th' world an' I'm glad I seen her like—that I loved her."

There was infinite pathos in his heavy voice for the moment.

"But th' play's over. Th' curtain'll drop in thirty minutes—forty or fifty at most—an' I'm the winner at last! You'll never marry her! But how I had you on th' hip—eastern lawyers an' all!"

"An' old Frazer—clumsy fool! Found your East Belt deed unrecorded, didn't you? Laid it to him. Why didn't you lay it to Hampden, who had th' brains an' the power of the whole country? It was recorded all right, but I owned th' recorder same as I owned th' commissioner. Fools, fools, all of you! An' I win at last!"

It was again the East and the West that Sandry saw with aching eyes in the two women who took Hampden's news of their fate. Miss Ordway raised palsied hands and let them drop while she stared with eyes of frightful horror. Siletz moved never a muscle.

"I told you to go back!" she cried, "that big things were about to happen, and you would not. Now I shall pay you for all things—for what you would do to Sandry. Also I pay him—for that." She pointed to the still form under the ferns.

"There is a way out—the secret trail which only I know and which we take."

She sprang and caught Black Bolt's bridle, dragging him with one motion to Sandry's side. She bent to him with arms of loving service, exerting all her strength.

"Climb!" she commanded, "climb quick! We can make it yet!"

But Sandry looked into her blazing dark face that was like the peaks in storm, so wild was it, so thrilling, so beyond comprehension, and shook his head.

"What would yo do?" he asked.

"Do? Go down the trail across the Hog Back. There is room for a horse,

"Who Wins Now?" He Said. "Brains—Brains!"

if he is sure-footed, and Black Bolt will go where I put him. Come! He's jaded a bit but he'll carry us both."

"And—they?"

She flamed from brow to throat with unholy joy.

"Leave them!" she cried savagely, "leave them to burn with their proofs and their schemes and their wickedness! It is the right law!"

"No," he said, "it cannot be. If there is a way you must go—you are a woman—and—you must take her with you."

"What?" cried Siletz in anguish.

"That is the way of the outside world, Little S'letz—the way of honor."

He saw the fires leap and flicker in her eyes, felt the tension of her hands upon his arms. Here was a force as wild and erratic as the great fires in the forest, and he knew not how to handle it. Then came the words of the Preacher like a way out of his difficulty.

"The three bars—of Bondage, of Faithfulness and of Service."

"You are my woman," said the young man sternly, "is it not so?"

"Yes," answered the girl simply, "I am your woman."

"Then I command you to go—and take her with you."

The girl dropped his shoulders and arose.

"I will obey," she said.

A change was working in her. The singing in her ears was growing fainter. She was coming into the open country where Sandry lived his life, even as he had gone for a moment into the fastnesses where hers was laid.

"Come," she said to the staring woman, "there is a way out. You need not die."

As the words forced themselves into the swaying brain of the other they stripped her of every rag of civilization. With a shriek she threw herself forward, caught at the saddle, clawed at its trappings like one demented.

But Siletz flung her back.

"A gift for a gift," she cried, "I give you your wicked life. Give me the packet."

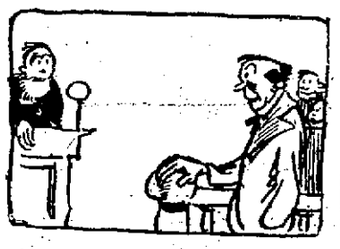

The woman tore the papers from her breast, thrusting them in frenzy at the girl and again tried uselessly to mount Black Bolt. Hampden came forward, lifted her gently in his strong arms and set her upon the horse. She leaned down and snatched at the reins, but Siletz held them away.

"Quick!" screamed Poppy Ordway, "do you want me to burn, you squaw?"

Dinner Stories

An English publican was prosecuted in London recently for selling a bottle of whisky during prohibited hours. A bottle of whisky similar to that sold was produced as evidence. The jury heard the evidence and retired to the jury room. They presently returned.

"My lord," said the foreman, "the jury are quite satisfied as to the sale of the bottle, but they are not sure of its contents. May they have the bottle to satisfy themselves?"

"Certainly," declared the judge.

After a brief period the jury filed into the box again.

"Well, gentlemen, have you reached a decision?" asked the judge.

"No case, my lord," said the foreman. "There was not enough evidence to go around."

An actor who recently returned from a successful season in Europe, tells a story of a very old Irishman, who one day astonished a friend by announcing that he was about to get married.

"Married!" evclaimed his friend. "An old man like you?"

"Well, you see," the old man exclaimed, "it's just because I'm getting an old boy now. It's a fine thing to have a wife near you to close your eyes when you have come to the end."

"Ah, don't be so foolish!" exclaimed his friend. "What do you know about it? Close your eyes? Indeed! I've had a couple of them, and, faith, both of them opened mine."

WHY "ANURIC" IS AN INSURANCE AGAINST SUDDEN DEATH!

Sufferers from Backache, Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble.

Before an Insurance Company will take a risk on your life the examining physician will test the urine and report whether you are a good risk. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you suffer from backache-sick-headache, dizzy spells, or the twinges and pains of lumbago rheumatism and gout. The urine is often cloudy, full of sediment; channels often get sore and sleep is disturbed two or three times a night. This is the time you should consult some physician of wide experience—such as Dr. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. Send him 10 cents for sample package of his new discovery—"Anuric." Write him your symptoms and send a sample of urine for test. Experience has taught Dr. Pierce that "Anuric" is the most powerful agent in dissolving uric acid, as hot water melts sugar, besides being absolutely harmless and is endowed with other properties, for it preserves the kidneys in a healthy condition by thoroughly cleansing them. Being so many times more active than lithia, it clears the heart valves of any sandy substances which may clog them and checks the degeneration of the blood-vessels, as well as regulating blood pressure. "Anuric" is a regular insurance and life saver for all big meat eaters and those who deposit lime-salts in their joints. Ask to druggist for "Anuric" put up by Dr. Pierce, in 50-cent packages.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets for the liver and bowels have been favorably known for nearly 50 years.—Advertisement.

When Rug Curls.

When small rugs curl, grate beeswax or spermaceti over the underside of the rug at the corners and press with a warm iron. This tends to stiffen the corners and in no way will the wax or spermaceti injure the floor, since it soaks into the coarse threads of the rug.

Dance to the Vibrations.

Vibrations of the floor caused by the playing of an orchestra are said to be sufficient for deaf persons to dance by. This at least is the explanation given for a dancing exhibition by deaf couples held in San Francisco recently. Others, not susceptible to these vibrations, fall into the rhythm by watching.

Conscience and Love.

To make conscience tolerable, love should be thrown around it. Conscience is the frame of character, and love is the covering for it.—Henry Ward Beecher.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids.

It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "loggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

QUARTET OF DRUNKS GIVEN SEVEN DAYS

Four Men Plead Guilty to Charge and Are Given Five Dollars or Week in Jail.

There was a quartet of drunks before the municipal court on Tuesday and all four drew the same penalty of seven days under the commitment law, when they pleaded guilty to the charges. Two of the men, Oscar Esenburg of Stoughton, and Ole Olson of Leyden, figured in accidents, Essenburg in a runaway on Western avenue and Olson falling off the interurban car on McKey boulevard Monday morning.

John O'Donnell, a youth transient, was first to be arraigned. He had the appearance of having been through a bayonet charge. His left eye was closed shut, enlarged about thrice, and had all the glowing colors of a summer rain-bow. Besides there were cuts and bruises about his battle scarred face, indicating very clearly that some one during a fistic argument had hit John with reckless abandon. He took the seven days.

Oscar Essenburg, some time after the wild runaway in which his team of colts ran into two wagons, injuring one woman, was arrested on Milwaukee street, when Patrolman Albright found him with his face covered with blood. Essenburg is expected to pay the fine of five dollars and costs.

James Brown, a laborer who wore a brightly hued mackinaw that had at least fifteen different colors mixed in the wild array of stripes, went to jail to spend his seven days.

Ole Olson went to the justice bench rubbing his enlarged head, where he struck the pavement from the fall off the car, and admitted being a little drunk. The court held that the "little drunk" constituted enough so that he would "not be able to care for his own safety," and Olsen went to jail for a week's term.

John Hessian, who was sentenced to six months under the commitment law, did not have his sentence suspended and was committed to the county jail yesterday.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor:

I am employed nights at one of the railroad yards. Each morning about the time I secure my much needed rest the driver of a certain bakery wagon stops directly under my window and rings his gong furiously. Of course it awakens me and despite all efforts on my part to have him stop the practice he continues it. Is there no redress from this nuisance? A NIGHT WORKER.

N. B. A complaint to the bakery owners or to the police should abate this nuisance. Editor.

NEW VOTING SYSTEM IS BEING TRIED IN ASHTABULA CITY, OHIO

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Ashtabula, O., Nov. 24.—Under Ashtabula's ne wgovernment by Proportional Representation, every faction of voters totaling more than one-eighth of the votes cast gets one representative in the city council. The change was made Nov. 2.

Ashtabula with 20,000 population is the first American city to adopt the plan. It is said to be truly representative of all the citizens. The plan's advocates predict that it will be generally adopted. They claim it is based on principle while others are based on patronage. The citizens are said to be pleased with it.

Party control, an objection to the City Manager plan, has been obviated by the Ashtabula principle plan, it is said. It is asserted that by having the best man of any group of voters seek a council place on his group's principles, ward politics is abolished.

There were fourteen candidates for seven places, each nominated by a two per cent voters' ption on non-partisan ballots. Each candidate's faction was stated after his name. Each voter put the figure one after his first choice. If vote counted for but one candidate, but he could make as many secondary choices as there were names. The councilmen were chosen at large.

Election to office was determined by dividing the total vote by eight, giving, in Ashtabula, a quotient of 372 on the basis of 2973 valid votes. Any candidate with 372 first choice votes was elected. If he had over 372 they were given to the next highest man not already elected. Low candidates were dropped and their votes added to the next highest choice on the ballot. When the ballots were counted the business faction had three, the Irish, Swede and Italian one each, and the Socialist, the only party mentioned, one.

FIVE YEAR SEARCH FOR BELVIDERE MAN HEIR TO AN ESTATE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Belvidere, Ill., Nov. 24.—For more than five years relatives here have been seeking Rinard Shawvan, who mystriously disappeared about eleven years ago. An estate of $30,000 in which the missing man should share, is held pending the expiration of the seven years since he was last heard from, after which Shawvan may legally be declared dead.

In the countrywide search for Shawvan, trace of the missing man was found at Aiken, Minn., and again at Needles, Calif. Shawvan's parents believe he joined the Mexican revolutionists and died in battle. He always wanted to be a soldier. As a boy he played war and accidentally got two fingers of his left hand shot off.

ENVOYS TRY TO FIND SAN MARENO REPUBLIC

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Berlin, Nov. 24.—A Washington cablegram today instructed Ambassador Gerard to take over the diplomatic affairs, documents and property of the tiny Italian repuolic of San Marino, geographically the smallest republic in the world. The country covers only a few square miles, has but 20,000 inhabitants and possesses guns which cannot be used in target practice because they overshoot the borders in all directions.

Nevertheless, San Marino has declared war on Germany and Mr. Gerard is its Berlin representative. The only trouble is that he can't find anything with which to do the representing. As representative in Berlin of England, Japan and other enemies of Germany's, Mr. Gerard has taken over their enormous embassies and voluminous documents. He has tried and tried to find the San Marino legation. He can't find a thing. He said he might advise Washington that the legation is mislaid or that, if San Marino ever had a legation or anything else in Berlin, somebody has walked away with it.

FEAR RELIGIOUS BREAK IN CITY OF MONROE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Monroe, Wis., Nov. 24.—Fears are being expressed here that another religious outbreak, such as was experienced in this city some time ago when an anti-Catholic paper was started here, will again take place as a result of the refusal of the city council to grant permission to the Monroe Ministerial association to hold evangelistic meetigns at "Market Square," a vacant lot where religious meetings have previously been held. At the former religious outbreak, friends of different denominations would pass one another on the streets, but would not speak.

THANKSGIVING HAS MANY ACTIVITIES

Time For Family Reunions—Special Church Services—Many Social Activities

Thursday is Thanksgiving, so prescribed by the President of the United States and the Governor of Wisconsin in special proclamations. Time honored custom of family reunions, family dinners and special church services will form the day's program in many households.

At ten-thirty in the morning there will be a union church service at the Richards' Memorial United Brethren Church at which Rev. F. H. Brigham, pastor of the Cargill Methodist church, will deliver the sermon. Pastors of other churches will also take part in the service. There will be special music by the choir and chorus and the congregation will unite in singing America. At twelve a dinner will be served which is free to all. This church is located at the corner of Milton and Prospect avenues.

The Christian Science church will also hold a special service, notice of which is published elsewhere.

In many homes in the city the baskets furnished by the pupils of the high school and delivered by the Associated Charities, will bring good cheer. Several of the churches have also supplied families that might otherwise have been missed in the general day of thanks. The seventh grade of the Jefferson school also furnished a few baskets which went where they would do the most good.

There were no special Thanksgiving exercises in the city schools this afternoon and the pupils were dismissed until Monday next. At Christmas there will be the usual school exercises although Thanksgiving and the story of the Pilgrims were topics discussed and read of in many of the grades.

This evening the festivities open with the annual Trainmen's ball at Assembly hall and Thanksgiving night comes the annual Golf Club dance wit ha special orchestra from Milwaukee to furnish the inspiration. There will also be many private entertainments at homes throughout the city and the various theatres all have special programs arranged for

Most of the dinners served in Janesville, and in fact in all Wisconsin, Thursday, will be made up almost entirely of Wisconsin grown products, according to the grocers of the city. They say that very few provisions have been shipped in from other states. Everything from "soup to cigars" has been grown in Wisconsin.

But even with the prices of Wisconsin products staring him in the face, the head of the family hasn't much of a chance to get away from worry on Thanksgiving eve. The big item, of course, is the old gobbler.

Blask head did it, explain the meat merchants as they point to the 28 and 30 cents quotation of Wisconsin turkeys. And when they tell about the hundreds of turkeys in Wisconsin flocks, killed off by the 1915 malady, you wonder what the poor turkey growers have to be thankful for.

Turkeys, 30 cents a pound.
Cranberries, 10 cents a pound.
Pumpkins, 15 cents a piece.
Celery, 15 cents a bunch.
Irish Potatoes, 15 cents a peck.
Sweet Potatoes, 5 cents a pound.
Cheese, 23 cents a pound.
Cigars, 10 (or 5) cents a piece.

FEW GLANDERS CASES REPORTED IN STATE

State Veterinarias Eliason Makes a Statement Regarding Disease of Danger to Horses.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 24.—Although this is the time of the year when horses are more than usually affected by glanders, not many cases of glanders are found in Wisconsin. Concerning status of the disease in Wisconsin, Dr. O. H. Eliason, veterinarian of the Wisconsin department of agriculture, said today:

"Very little glanders is found in Wisconsin at this time and it is only found in districts where shipments of western horses have been brought in and dispersed. It is confined to the middle and northwest part of the state.

"This inferior class of horses are often brought in and sold to settlers who can not afford better horses and quite often taken from herds where glanders has existed on the western ranches. Although these have been mallein-tested for glanders, before shipment, quite a few develop the disease later on and are a menace to the rest of the horse industry.

"The largest outbreak found recently was in the vicinity of Grand Rapids where about a dozen have been destroyed, most of which were of this class of stock.

"Glanders is communicable to man, therefore it is a health measure and taken care from that standpoint."

STATE TO PREVENT THE SALE OF DEER

Game Wardens Ordered to Stop Hunters Purchasing Deer—Market Hunters Hit Hard.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Nov. 24.—In an effort to completely suppress the sale of deer to unsuccessful hunters, the Wisconsin conservation commission has issued orders to wardens at terminal points to investigate all suspicious cases and to wardens at shipping points to make inquiries in regard to killing of deer. The intention is to prosecute all hunters buying deer and all market hunters in northern district, who sell carcases to unsuccessful hunters.

"Principle opposition to the so-called "buck" law in Wisconsin comes from market hunters in the northern part of the state and from city hunters who, unable to kill deer, heretofore have bought deer from market hunters and brought the carcases home under their own license tag and represented that they killed the deer" said Conservation Commissioner Barber, who returned today from a visit in twenty cities in northern Wisconsin.

"Does cannot be killed or shipped lawfully and bucks are too scarce for market hunters to kill and sell at a profit."

Commissioner Barber said the law was operating successfully and would be retained on the Wisconsin statutes.

EARLY AUTUMN SHIPMENT OF POTATOES SHORT THIS YEAR.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Appleton, Wis., Nov. 24.—The early Autumn shipment of potatoes this year is far short of the record made last season, according to railroad officials. The wet weather which prevailed last spring, is placed for the small supply, and consequent light shipments.

However, railroad men today said they expected the later crop would make a considerable increase in the shipments. Many of the larger growers have stored their product and will keep it until the price advances.

GREEN COUNTY'S POET LAUREATE IS TOO BUSY FOR RHYME THIS YEAR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Monroe, Wis., Nov. 24.—For the first time in many years, County Clerk J. W. Stewart, Green county's poet laureate, has not written a Thanksgiving poem. He was forced to give his full attention this year to business connected with the county board of supervisors, which held an unusually long term. Heretofore Mr. Stewart has always issued a Thanksgiving poem, having won fame as a poet in issuing notices of the annual meetings of the board in rhyme.

QUIT MEAT IF YOUR KIDNEYS ACT BADLY

Take Tablespoonful of Salts If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers—Drink Lots of Water.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

ENVOYS TRY TO FIND SAN MARINO REPUBLIC.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Berlin, Nov. 24.—A Washington cablegram today instructed Ambassador Gerard to take over the diplomatic affairs, documents and property of the tiny Italian republic of San Marino, geographically the smallest republic in the world. The country covers only a few square miles, has but 20,000 inhabitants and possesses guns which cannot be used in target practise because they overshoot the borders in all directions.

Nevertheless, San Marino has declared war on Germany and Mr. Gerard is its Berlin representative. The only trouble is that he can't find anything with which to do the representing. As representative in Berlin of England, Japan and other enemies of Germany's, Mr. Gerard has taken over their enormous embassies and voluminous documents. He has tried and tried to find the San Marino legation. He can't find a thing. He said he might advise Washington that the legation is mislaid or that, if San Marino ever had a legation or anything else in Berlin, somebody has walked away with it.

YOUR BRONCHIAL TUBES

When a cold settles in the bronchial tubes, with that weakening, tickling cough, immediate treatment is very important. The breath seems shorter because of mucous obstructions; usually fever is present, your head jars with every cough and your chest may ache. This is no time for experimenting or delay—you must get Scott's Emulsion at once to drive out the cold which started the trouble, and it will check the cough by aiding the healing process of the enfeebled membranes.

If you have any symptoms of bronchitis, or even a stubborn cold, always remember that Scott's Emulsion has been relieving this trouble for forty years. It is free from alcohol or drugs. Refuse substitutes.

DOLLAR STANDARD SAVING TO STATES

Victory Crowns Battle of American Dollars and English Pounds, Americans Will Profit.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

New York, Nov. 24.—How a great deal of money will be saved to American manufacturers if victory crowns the newly begun battle of American bankers to make the American dollar, instead of the British pound sterling, the financial standard for world trade, was explained by Max May, foreign exchange expert and vice-president of the Guaranty Trust company.

Since time out of mind the pound sterling has been the world's exchange market standard. This was because Great Britain was considered a financial Gibraltar. Britain's varying war fortunes have unsettled the pound sterling, however, and it has been wobbling up and down in value almost every day. In other words, a pound's worth of American goods today may not be a pound's worth of American goods tomorrow.

"If the exchange market were stable," said Mr. May, "American exporters would be able to protect themselves by knowing what prices to quote on their products.

"As it is, if a cotton man in the south sells a million dollars worth of his product to an English firm, on 90 days' credit, he quotes a price based on the prevailing exchange rate. If the exchange rate has slumped by the time he ships his goods, the cotton man loses money. The seller takes a big gambling chance. The buyer does not. If payment were based on American dollars that would not occur. We are trying to make all foreign buyers, governments included, pay in American dollars.

"Plans now being formulated by American bankers to stabilize foreign exchange may accomplish this result," said he. "The huge volume of exports are working toward that end also. The scheme under consideration should make it a fact.

"Naturally, foreign buyers are not anxious to do this. Sterling has been the financial criterion in world trade for so many years it is a hard task to get them to consider it.

"Payment in dollars for exported goods from this country would stabilize the exchange market and that, I think every banker will agree, is the most important question to be settled in international banking affairs today. "Sterling would better be around $4.65, or some nominal figure like that, at all times, than to be constantly fluctating as it has been doing these last few months.

WOMAN'S PAGE

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. B.A. LEONARD

"Oh, it's good to be at home. How long, how very long it seems since that night I went to bed sick." Molly gazed around the shabby sitting room in perfect content. John had done his best at "slicking up" before his wife's return. Even if he had left much to be desired, Molly saw nothing but a place where she was to have a chance to try again and see if her life could not spell something besides failure.

"Mrs. Ellson planned to come over and straighten the house. She said she had very little faith in my ability as a housekeeper, but I insisted that I could do it and wanted the chance. She has done so much for all of us I was determined not to impose on her any more." John gazed around entirely pleased with the labor of his hands.

"You did beautifully, and it was so nice not to have anyone else have a hand in it. Dear John, please go after Jack. It seems almost as if he would be changed in all the long time since I saw him."

As she spoke a knock sounded at the door, and John rushed to open it, saying:

"Here he is. They have brought him over."

"Come in," he called joyously. "Come and see how well Molly looks."

"Jack!" exclaimed Molly, holding out her arms. The boy ran into them and clasped his arms tight around her neck.

Olive Ellson stood watching the pair with shining eyes.

"How glad I am to see you, dear friend," said Molly, as she extended her hand over Jack's head. "How can I ever think you for all your kindness to my little boy? Whatever would have become of him if you and Mrs. Morton had not taken him in, I cannot think."

"Oh, that was nothing. I really enjoyed having him with me, and the doctor will not be willing to stay at home now that he is gone. Such fun as they had together.

"You are looking remarkably well considering how short a time it is since you got up from a sick bed," Olive turned her to the light to inspect her more closely.

"Such care and nursing as I have had would bring a response from anyone not wholly dead. I surely am rich in friends, if poor in purse."

"I meant to come over and get the house all straight, but your husband would hear to nothing of the kind, and I see he was right in thinking he could do it. He is a better housekeeper than I supposed.

"I must go home and get the doctor's supper. He will be anxious to know how you stood the trip home. You will see him soon. Good-bye. I'll see you tomorrow." And she was gone. The three were alone in their home together.

"I brought home some oysters for a stew as a special treat tonight," said John, leading the way to the kitchen. "Jack and I will set the table while you make the stew. We'll help mamma all we can so she will not get sick again. Eh, Jack?" He picked up the child and kissed him from pure excess of joy.

When the doctor came in the three were still sitting around the table chatting cosily.

"I shall not need to prescribe anything. All the tonic you need is right here." He nodded at John's happy face.

"The doctor is right, John, dear. I feel as if I could lift tons." Molly went around the table and took John's face between her hands to kiss him."

Heart and Home Problems

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: There has been an estrangement that has come between a very dear girl friend and myself. The case is puzzling to me. I have made overtures to regain her friendship when I was not the one that was greatest at fault, but she ignored them. In my treatment of her I have always given her my kindest respect. A misunderstanding grew out of our friendship that was very peculiar. Since then she has cherished all manner of doubts about me. She has doubted my charter because I have been a man who has travelled a great deal and have had a great deal of experience for my age. She held accusations in her mind that I did not respect her relatives, while I have never given her an occasion to think so. These things hurt me deeply, as I did not think after the treatment I have given her she would harbor such imaginings.

Do you think her worthy of my further consideration? I am a man who does not give up easily, but there are times when a fellow should uphold his self-respect. Is there really anything more I should do?

PUZZLED.

No happiness can grow out of friendship with a girl who does not trust you. As long as she finds you such a suspicious character she ought to drop you, but since she doesn't I think it is your place to give her up.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Last summer I was introduced to a handsome young man of whom I have thought constantly since. He is in a good business and is trying to live a clean, enterprising life. I am crazy to get better acquainted with him, but I never go to any social functions that he attends, because he lives in another town. How can I get better acquainted so that he will not think that I am in pursuit of him? You certainly don't know how it is to feel the way I do. I can neither sleep nights nor have a minute's rest when awake, for thinking of some plan and trying to devise one in which I may win him. He certainly is ideal. I am interested in religion and so is he and I am almost certain that we could be happy if only the ice were broken.

THANK YOU.

You have said that the man is ideal, and the one you worship certainly is ideal because he is a creation of your thoughts and not a reality. Without knowing him you can be no true judge of his character. Don't let your mind dwell on this obsession, because you are depriving yourself of much happiness that is rightfully yours but that you refuse to recognize. There is no way in which you can force a better acquaintance without compromising yourself. You might become acquainted through church work.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man twenty-three years old and am counted good-looking and my character is good. I have been keeping company with a girl five years younger than I am. We were engaged to be married and she said she loved me all along until a few Sunday nights ago, when she said she was going to quit. And she did. But she said she still wanted to be friends with me. She said that she might like to come back to me some day and that she hated to think of me marrying anyone else. Do you think she will come back? Please tell me how to win her back, as I love her very much and it breaks my heart to lose her.

LONESOME BOY.

A girl of eighteen is wise not to tie herself down to one boy when she knows so little of others. Be just a friend to this girl for two or three years, as she asks you to, since you care so much for her.

Household Hints

THE TABLE.

Baked Sausage and Potatoes—Slice thickly as many potatoes as desired, put on to boil until about half done (seasoning, of course), then put in deep baking pan with rings of sausage on top. Bake until grease has baked out of sausage or until sausage is brown. Turn sausage to brown under side. This makes an easy meal to prepare and is nice for one who doesn't like sausage because it contains too much fat.

"Mammy's Turkey Sauce"—The day after Thanksgiving, when one is just a little surfeited with good things to eat, the cold turkey will be doubly inviting if served this way: Take six large ripe tomatoes. Plunge into boiling water to remove skins, then chop fine. Add medium-sized onion, three large green peppers chopped, half cup water, salt and pepper (just a pinch of cayenne). Boil until peppers are dark green. Remove from fire and add two cups boiled rice. Serve cold sliced turkey on platter surrounded by sauce.

Favorite Rabbit Recipe—Prepare rabbit as you would for frying. Place in kettle with three or four small slices of fresh side pork, stew till tender, boil dry and brown same as for pot roast. It is not so dry and the wild taste is not so strong.

Beef Salad—One dozen large red beets, cooked well and chopped fine; put these together while beets are hot, then it will sort of jell. Add one cup vinegar, one cup sugar, one small grated horseradish or two teaspoons mustard; salt and pepper to taste. Put into fruit jars if you want to keep it any length of time.

Pear Tarts—Peel pears as for cooking, place between two flaky crusts, sprinkle with sugar and crystalized ginger. Bake until brown. Or soak figs over night with a little bayleaf. Proceed as with pears.

"Sudden Visitation" Pudding—Crumble about ten ounces stale bread and mix into it six ounces sugar, a little grated nutmeg, cinnamon and citron peel, yolks of three eggs and a teacupful of cream or boiled rich milk; into milk put a lump of butter size of an egg. After it is well beaten together put it in a tart dish and over the top place a layer of any preserved fruit; add a little lemon or fruit juice. The pudding is made in about five minutes and takes about half an hour to bake.

Egyptian Cake—Two ounces chocolate, four eggs, half cup milk, one and one-half cups soft white sugar, one heaping teaspoon baking powder, one and three-quarter cups flour, one teaspoon vanilla. Dissolve chocolate in five tablespoons boiling water; beat butter to a cream, adding gradually the sugar; add yolks of eggs, beat again; add milk, then melted chocolate beating. Beat whites to a stiff froth and stir carefully into mixture. Add vanilla and baking powder. Mix quickly and lightly. Twice this amount makes a nice three-layer cake. Use a boiled white frosting.

Caramel Pudding—One heaping tablespoon butter, one cup light brown sugar, one quart milk, cornstarch to thicken, maple or vanilla extract. Stir sugar and butter until sugar turns brown. Dissolve in milk, then thicken with cornstarch, add flavoring. Pour in sherbet glasses and cool. Decorate with whipped cream or white of egg and sprinkle with chopped nuts. This pudding is especially good when eggs are dear.

Mother Eve's Pudding—Four eggs, four apples, one and one-half cups bread crumbs, slight grating of nutmeg, pinch of salt, three fourths cup of sugar. Peel, core and chop the apples finely, add the bread crumbs, sugar, salt and nutmeg. Beat the eggs well and use them to moisten the pudding. Turn into a greased mold, cover closely and steam two hours. Serve with hot wine sauce.

Stuffed Tomatoes—Pare and remove centers of tomatoes. Stuff with bread crumbs mixed with butter, salt and pepper. Season tomatoes with sugar, salt and pepper to taste. Bake until crumbs are brown. Place a sprig of parsley on each and serve.

—By— RUTH CAMERON

I DON'T BELIEVE IT.

"I don't believe it."

That is what a friend of mine frequently says afterwards when she has heard anyone make a statement which seems improbable to her.

Whenever I hear her say that, I think of a decision I made when I was a very small girl. I decided a little comrade of mine didn't tell the truth.

You see she had told me two things that no one could believe. One was that she had twice sat up until half-past eleven. Now the latest I had ever sat up was ten o'clock, and that only once a year, and I didn't believe any child would ever be permitted to sit up later than that. It certainly stood to reason that if my mother, whom I recognized to be rather indulgent, didn't let me sit up after ten, Rosie's mother, who was distinctly strict, would never have let her sit up until half-past eleven.

I Knew It Couldn't Have Happened.

The other lie was this. Once upon a time, said Rosie, her mother had seen a man who had taken hold of an electric wire and in some way had been caught by that electricity and he couldn't let go of the wire, and it hurt him dreadfully. So much of the story I accepted, the rest I considered incredible. When another man tried to pull the first man away (according to Rosie), the electricity caught him too, and he couldn't get away either, and then another man caught hold of him, and finally there was a whole string of men who couldn't let go of each other.

I didn't tell Rosie that I didn't believe the story. We were too good friends for that. I didn't stop loving her either, but I sadly set her down in my mind as a person with a habit of taking liberties with the truth, and discounted many of her subsequent statements accordingly.

Poor, misjudged Rosie! After wards when my experience and knowledge of the world broadened sufficiently for me to know I had misjudged her, it was too late to tell her.

Very Few People Tell Downright Lies.

However, I have learned a lesson. All is not incredible that sounds so. One's experience is just as apt to be telling the lie as one's friend. A great many people exaggerate or smooth things off; comparatively few tell downright lies.

When anyone says a thing which seems incredible to you, it may be that your experience is too limited for you to understand it. Or it may be that circumstances which appear to contradict the statements are false. Appearances are deceitful, and even figures, which should be the most exact and coldblooded things in the world, are said to lie. Don't be too quick to set your neighbor down as a liar by saying, "I don't believe it." Remember, if he is telling the truth you are a slanderer. Give him and yourself the benefit of the doubt.

With My Letter Friends.

Question—Don't you believe that most people have true love mates and that they generally meet sooner or later, and when they do meet, if marriage should be the result, would not that be the hapiest union ever? And don't you believe that whtre true love exists, there is scarcely a sacrifice too great for either one to make for the other or a fault too bad for one to overlook in the other?

Answer—Personally, I don't believe that there is only one true mate for each individual, but rather one type with which each type will be happiest. As to faults, love does help a lot; but remember that some people aren't big enough even under the influence of the greatest love they are capable of to overcome their own faults or bear patiently with the faults of others. However, I don't mean to discourage you. Don't mind me.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

THE PYORRHOEA QUESTION.

If one theory is extinct it is that pyorrhoea alevolaris or "Rigg's disease" is in any way dependent upon uric acid. We must get that idea, not the acid, out of our system before we can accomplish anything definite for this very common trouble of the gums.

Notwithstanding the doubts of those who have not tested it, the emetine treatment does prove remarkably helpful in most cases. Emetine is the active principle of ipecac. It is administered by hypodermic injecions, a dose each day for a week or ten days. At the same time the patient adopts a mouthwash or tooth-paste containing ipecac in very minute quantity—not over one per cent.—for permanent use. The reason for using the specific pecac is that the endamoeba buccals, the probable cause of pyorrhoea, is such a popular little animal that re-infection is almost certain to occur if not guarded against. About ninety per cent. of the people harbor the endamoebas, and certainly ten per cent. of adults show more or less pyorrhoea alveolaris.

It is generally believed that the endamoebas serve as pioneers, preparing the way for the entrance of various common pus-cocci—streptococci particularly. At any rate, the use of vaccines prepared from the pus obtained from the little pus-pockets about the teeth is recommended and practiced by the best dentists and physicians in conjunction with the emetine treatment or sometimes separately. A dose of the autogenous (self-supplied) vaccine is injected under the skin every four or five days for a period of many weeks or months, and the improvement noted in the mouth is no less gratifying than the secondary gain in general health that often follows such a course of treatment. Incidentally it is well to remember that any form of vaccine treatment mus necessarily be continued for a long period, and that the beneficial results may be looked for many weeks after the treatment is instituted.

The ipecac mouth-wash or tooth-paste usually improves the condition of the gums and makes them less sensitive; they bleed very little or none after its use has been continued a few weeks. But good authorities urge a sort of auto-vaccination: that is, the patient should brush the gums just as vigorously as possible, and for this purpose the ordinary tooth-brush is inferior to the fingers; massage with the finger is advisable for every case of pyorrhoea. Perhaps a brush smaller than usual, with very short bristles, is better. Sweeping the spaces between the teeth with floss silk is likewise advisable.

Arthritis (rheumatism), obstinate stomach trouble and severe anaemia are three conditions very often dependent upon the systemic poisoning from pyorrhoea, and hopeless of cure until the mouth is put in hygienic condition.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Still Working a Popular Policy.

Have been doctoring for over a year without relief complains an easy-going man. Family physician says I have sciatic rheumatism of the nerves. I have sore, painful places all over.

Answer.—There is but one sciatic nerve. But there are lots of good doctors in your town.

A Relief.

"How did you come to lose your liberty?" asked the visitor at the penitentiary. "I ain't lost it," replied the prisoner. "Before I came to this institution I couldn't turn around that the police wasn't watchin' me. You don't know what a relief it is to be in a place that's run on the honor system."

An Everyday Cake

Here is a simple and inexpensive cake that can be varied in many ways with different frostings and icings. It looks a little nicer baked in a tube pan, but will be equally as good baked in a square loaf.

K C Gold Cake

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

½ cup butter; 1 cup sugar; yolks of 4 eggs, beaten light; 1 cup flour, less 2 level tablespoonfuls; 2 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; ½ cup milk; grated rind of 1 orange.

Sift flour and baking powder together three times; cream butter and sugar, beat yolks of eggs, add these to creamed mixture, and lastly add the moisture and flour alternately, beating batter until smooth. Gold Cake can only be made successfully by beating yolks of eggs, very, very creamy and light lemon colored, using a rotary beater. The rotary beater is the only beater that will do justice to the yolks of eggs. The beating kills all egg taste and improves the texture of the cake.

Cocoanut Frosting

Beat the whites of 2 eggs dry; gradually beat in half a cup of sifted confectioner's sugar and continue the beating until the frosting is smooth, thick and glossy; then beat in grated cocoanut, fresh or prepared, and spread upon the cake. This frosting is made thick by beating rather than by sugar.

Save this recipe. You will want to use it frequently Or better, send us the colored certificate packed in each 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder and we will mail you "The Cook's Book" containing this and 89 other baking recipes equally good—all by Mrs. Hill. Jaques Mfg. Co., Chicago.

"THE SIMPLE LIFE."

Here on the paths of every day,
Here on the common human way,
Is all the stuff the Gods would take
To build a Heaven, to mould and make new Edens.
Ours the stuff sublime,
To build eternity in time.

To aspire to the simple life. This means to aspire to fulfill the highest human destiny. All of men's agitation for greater justice and more life has been also movements toward a simpler life. The simplicity of olden times in maners, arts and ideas, still keeps its incomparable value. It is simplicity to cherish and reverence. It is impossible for us to be simple in the forms used, but we may remain simple or return to their simplicity of spirit. Our ways are not their ways, but the journey's end remains in truth the same.

THE WESTMINSTER GUILD.

The Westminster Guild was originated in the Woman's Presbyterian Board of Missions of the Northwest for the purpose of reaching the young women not already affiliated with any missionary organization, and willing to give time to a definite study of missions.

A committee and a special secretary were appointed to inaugurate the work and their plans met with immediate and enthusiastic response.

It was soon found that the effectiveness of the Chapters would be limited if the organization stood for any division in the master's work and that all plans must include Home and Foreign missions. Therefore, after a series of conferences, it was decided that the Guild should be an organization belonging to the Women's Board of Home and Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America and that it should know but one field of labor, THE WORLD.

Aim.

The aim of the Westminster Guild is two-fold:

First: To develope a symmetrical Christian young womanhood.

Second: To bind together for world-wide Christian service, the young women of our denomination.

All sorts of girls and young women are finding in the Wesminster Guild, an organization that is bringing to them a world-wide vision, and is linking them in a world-wide service. High scholo girls meet after school, or on Saturdays in their Westminster circle, and girls whose time is their own meet in the morning or afternoon, in their chapters. Some chapters of business girls come directly from work to an informal supper, prepared at small expense, after which the meeting is held.

The estimated membership of the United States is about 1,800, and there are 840 societies.

They contribute largely to hospital work and various schools and the missionary work of the home missions and maintain about eight missionaries abroad. They contributed last year about $10,000 for home missions and $8,000 for the work of foreign missions.

The bible study, the mission work of the association, the fun and the work of the Westminster Guild stands for roundly developed young womanhood, for strengthening the bond between them and their own denominational work, and for vitalizig the interest of the girls of the Presbyterian church for the service of Christ.

The local society of the Westminster Guild was organized in January, 1907. They have forty members. The list of officers is as follows:

President, Miss Elma Scofield; vice president, Miss Edith Soverhill; secretary, Grace Youngclause; treasurer, Grace Airis.

The patroneses: Miss Margaret Patterson, Miss Matella Callins, and Mrs. S. M. Smith.

They meet every first and third Tuesday and have for their work this season "Home Missions in Action," and "The King's Highways." They have helped very materially in church work and contribute regularly to the missionary funds. At present the young ladies are working on a cook book, which they expect to have ready for sale by the Christmas holidays. It will be a new and improved edition of their former cookbook.

They held a social meeting on Tuesday, November 16th, at the church, when a delicious supper was served at six-thirty. The meeting at seven o'clock was called to order by Miss Elma Scofield, and a musical selection was given by Miss Laila Soverhill, with Miss Louise Bennett at the piano.

The songs were entitled, "Little Miss Butterfly," and "God Remembers When the World Forgets," by Carrie Jacobs Bond.

Miss Rumsey of Lake Forest, a member of the board of mission of the northwest, was the guest of honor, and gave a very interesting talk on work along the lines of missionary activities. Their object was the standard of acceptable service, which she said made regular bible study a feature and created missionary interest, and was the foundation of the work. She spoke of the different missionaries engaged in service and of those enterprises that needed help at home. Miss Rumsey said that the guild best fulfilled its high mission, when it combined the social and religious activities together, and that the patronesses were the connecting link between the older and younger missionary societies.

REPORT OF W. C. T. U.

The W. C. T. U. had an unusually interesting meeting on Wednesday last at the home of Mrs. E. C. Jones on Locust street.

"A five o'clock tea" gave a social turn to the busy afternoon. All were pleased to meet the county president, Mrs. Weetman Dickinson, of Edgerton.

The address on "Municipal Problems" by Rev. T. C. Thorson was filled with food for thought and study.

Mr. Thorson denied any claims to being an expert on civic problems; yet his address was convincing. And, if hs ideas could be acted upon, many of God's poor could approach nearer to man's dream of contentment, hospitality, comradeship and pleasure, unmixed with evil.

Among other helpful suggestions were the followng:

A Municipal Employment Bureau would help the stranded, jobless man to find employment; and as soon as such men begin to earn money, they are producers of wealth, instead of parasites. Therefore, the city, the employer and the employee have all profited.

The housing problem should interest each family. Popular sentiment should make it possible for each renter to demand that the rented house shall be comfortable, with plenty of light and proper drainage, and sanitary in every detail.

Lofty public sentiment could create a demand for the best moving picture films. The pictures should be instructive, inspiring, wholesome; also convincing in moral lessons.

The public dance-hall, so prolific of evil, should be municipally conducted. Municipal officials would not have to yield to the subtle influence of material gain. Municipal ownership of dance halls would eliminate the self seeking policies of the private owner.

There are so many weak ones in the world and so many wicked ones, that, we who are strong should create an environment that is safe for youthful feet.

PRESS, CORRESPONDENT.

ART LEAGUE.

The regular meeting of this organization was held at Library Hall on Friday, Nov. 19. There was a small attendance, owing to the inclement weather. The Vice President, Mrs. Pember, presided and the secretary, Mrs. Strimple, called the roll and read the minutes. A report of the finances was given by the treasurer, Miss Ellen Goodwin, which showed that $25 had been paid on the note at the bank, a bill of $15 for programs paid and that there was a balance of $26.90 on hand. Ten dollars had been voted at a previous meeting for the benefit of the Endowment fund of the state, and it was ordered paid at this time.

The resignation of Mrs. Wm. Ruger, on account of removal from town, was accepted with regret.

The leader of the program for the afternoon, Miss Hattie Alden, then take charge of the meeting. The topic was, "The Gothic Arch in Italy," and she gave the first number on the lesson on the Cathedrals at Milan and Sienna. Of the Milan Cathedral, she said that it would accommodate an audience of 40,000 people and that the architect was unknown. It was made of brick, faced with white marble, was 556 ft. high to the top of the tower and was ornamented on the roof by 440 statues. The stained glass windows are the largest in hte world and the great bronze doors are a miracle of beauty.

The Sienna Cathedral is very rich and ornate in appearance, but rather bizarre, in the effect of the black and white marble in the columns forming stripes of the two colors. It has beautiful frescoes and pictures and a wonderfully carved pulpit. The pavement is inlaid with such lovely colors so as to form a picture gallery, underfoot.

The Cathedral of Orvieta has its inside walls formed of grey limestone and it is faced on the outside with black and white marble. It has well preserved frescoes made by Fra Angelico.

Miss Matilda Bailey was not present and in her absence Mrs. Dedrick gave her paper on the Palazzo Vecchio and Loggia at Florence. These are government buildings, the palace being the residence of the rulers of the city and the Loggia was the place where the decrees were proclaimed to the people. The palace has the arms and insignia of the city worked into its decoration and formerly had four stone lions to guard its precincts. The beautiful statue of David by Michael Angelo was formerly placed near its entrance, but to preserve it from the elements, it was recently removed to the Museum of Fine Arts. In the tower of this building Savonarola was imprisoned, and it was on its balconies that the judges sat while his body was given to the flames. The spot of his execution is marked by a tablet, let into the pavement of the street.

Current events was in charge of Mrs. F. A. Taylor, who had several very interesting items to offer. A reproduction of the picture awarded a thousand dollars prize last week in Chicago, "The Palm Leaf Fan," was shown. A short biography of the artist, J. Alden Weir, who is president of the Academy of Fine Arts of New York City, was read. It was noted that Lorado Taft is at work on what he designs as the biggest thing of his life, "The Fountain of Time," which he is commissioned to execute for a quarter of a million of dollars. It is to be erected in one of the parks and to be the property of the city of Chicago. A gift of $50,000 to the Art Institute, Chicago, was also mentioned. It is to be employed to erect an addition of three rooms to the Institute, to be known as the Frank Gunsaulus gallery. The fact that, Andrew O'Connor, the sculptor, who has designed the Lincoln Memorial Statue, has been recently at Springfield studying facts and getting atmosphere for his work was spoken of. The statue is ordered by the state of Illinois and is to be erected on the lawn near the capitol building.

REST ROOM IN MICHIGAN CITY.

Miss Hattie Alden has recently returned from Niles, Michigan, and reports that the city, although having but about 5,000 population, has a very convenient rest room. It is located in a small store on a business street, for which the sum of $200 rent is paid yearly. It was tarted by the club women of the town and is under their direct supervision. It has not the constant attendance of a matron, but a woman living across the street comes in every morning to take care of the room and has general charge concerning it.

Some of the club women make it a point to be in during the afternoons. There was a main sitting room comfortably furnished, wth a small room back of it having couch, etc., and the usual sanitary appliances conveniently placed. The women of the town are unanimous in the praise of the project and say that it is one of the greatest conveniences they have ever had.

PHILOMATHIAN CLUB.

This club met with Mrs. C. A. Thompson on Saturday, Nov. 20th. The president, Mrs. W. A. Munn, presided, and the secretary, Mrs. Lillian Eddy, was also present. A report was given by the committee concerning the work being done for the two rooms in the Y. M. C. A. They stated that the decorating was nearly completed and they would soon be ready for the finishing touches. A motion was made and committee appointed to take charge of a Thanksgiving basket of food given by the club as an offering for that day, to some needy family. A display of fancy work had been brought by the members as suggestions for Christmas and an informal exchange of views, plans for work and prices of material was given by individual members as the roll was called. A paper was given by Mrs. Helms on "Economy, or Distinguishing Between Our Needs and Our Wants." She defined economy as a conservation of material whether it be money, energy or labor, and extravagance as an excessive waste, whether it be of means, time or talents. She said that Economy is called the "Poor Man's Mint." The blind following of the lead of Fashion was responsible for more wasted energy of womankind than any other single item in the present day, and it was suggested that the conservative in dress was less noticeable and more likely to remain in style than the extreme mode.

The planning of work so as to avoid a wastage of energy and a careful discrimination between the "would like" and the "must haves" was also spoken of. Several readings from Charles Wagner's "Simple Life" were given. Several enjoyable musical numbers were rendered by Mrs. Louis Anderson, who gave as solos, "Mighty Like a Rose" and "Afterwards Love." Miss Marian Weirick gave a pleasing piano solo and she and Mrs. Anderson played a duet, "When the Lights Were Low." There was an attendance of eighteen club members and three visitors. The ladies worked on their sewing rags and now have enough completed for the weaving of four good rugs.

ECHOES FROM THE ECHO BANQUET

So many good things were given on this occasion that a few fragments are gathered up for presentation here. The reports were all clear cut gems of thought, and as such are entitled to fuller notice. Some of them will be given entire in a later issue.

Mrs. Anna Walker said, "Nothing is too good for the Children" and "The teacher of the Beginner Department should come to her work with the humility and feeling of a child."

Miss Katherine Stoddard suggested that "We should count it a great privilege to be the teacher of little children." She told the Dickens' story of little Paul Dombey—how when the older people said to him, "Shall we make a man of him?" he answered in his timid little voice, "Please, sir, I'd rather be a child." So, to teach little children, we must let them remain children and get down to their level, so that we may understand them.

Mrs. J. C. Hazen said in part, "That worshipful music has a great place in the Sunday school. It is the background of the picture, on which the high lights of the other work in the Sunday school is placed. We should give the children the best music obtainable, that they will learn to know and love its beauty. It has been said that when a child passes from the Intermediate grades in the Sunday school they should be familiar with at least forty of the old church hymns. She said that all Sunday school songs should be subjected to the following tests, before being taken into general use:

Is it truth?
Is it well expressed?
Is it worth remembering?

Mrs. B. F. Cary, dwelt particularly on the manual training side of primary work. She said, "The Lord showeth his handiwork." That the child could not understand a thing and remember it, by seeing it or hearing of it, but that when the child does a thing, he really knows it.

Mrs. C. P. Beers of the Junior Department said that a teacher should study her Sunday school lesson three times, "Till you get the lesson," "Till the lesson gets you" and lastly, "Till you have gotten the lesson in such shape that the children may get it from you." She suggested that "You answer all the questions that the children ask of you, to the best of your ability.

Mrs. E. C. Hocking thought that the most helpful idea of the convention was the "Exchange of Ideas." She gave some of the plans of a model Sunday school superintendent as given at the convention. The work was so well organized that much special work was done. She spoke of the fact that the membership of the school was listed by streets and a teacher detailed to call on that section once each month, being cordially welcomed by both children and parents.

Of the adult department, Miss Mary Barker said that her message was largely inspirational. "That the best methods of work were only the undercurernt bearing along the main idea of Sunday school work which was, "Training Lives for Service." That the most that could be done was in "Touching the life of the pupils and teaching them to live toward better and higher ideals."

Miss Austin thought that organization meant a place and responsibility for everybody. She said that to keep the older children in the church work, they should be given a chance and taught to help run the Sunday school.

The whole idea of the "Echo Meeting" was that the great work of the present day and age was along the vital need of Sunday school work. That this was the biggest and best thing that a community could do and that by the co-operation of all the church organizations and by arousing the interest of the better element of the city, much good could be accomplished. That the plan of the training schools for religious instruction should include all interested in the betterment of the city, whether affiliated with church societies or not. In that way could the best good be accomplished and the greatest number of people reached.

EASTERN STAR STUDY CLASS.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather Thursday afternoon, Nov. 18th, twenty-nine members and four visitors gathered at the cozy apartments of Mrs. William Ashcraft and greatly enjoyed an inspiring patriotic program, opening with the singing of America, by Class. Roll call answered by favorite National hymn, "Star Spangled Banner" and "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," proving the most popular. Mrs. Binneweis gave the "History of Our Flag" and read one of Henry Van Dyke's beautiful poems.

President Weirick reviewed "The Man Without a Country." Noland (no land) is the name given in this story by Edward Everett Hale, of which it has been said, "It teaches, as no other writing can, the meaning of patriotism and the significance of a flag."

The D. A. R. salute to our Flag was repeated in unison by the class: "I pledge allegiance to my Flag, and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." (Stand and Salute.) Historian Kimberley gave the W. R. C. salute: "I pledge my allegiance to God, and our Country, One Country, one language, one Flag."

Old Glory is the oldest Flag of all nations, other countries having made changes in their flags for different rulers, or administrations. Our National anthem is "Star Spangled Banner," not by act of Congress, but through recognition given it by the Army and Navy April 14, 1818. Congress adopted the Flag of today and permanently fixed its form, thirteen stripes, and one star for each state. Washington made it necessary that a new Flag should wave to tell of a new Nation—the United States of America.

No national law has yet been enacted by Congress for the veneration of the flag. Discussion on ways and means for raising money to furnish Room 219 at the Y. M. C. A. was given attention and a committee chosen to attend to same.

An appetizing two course luncheon was served at the close by Mrs. Ashcraft, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Wilbur Carle.

ADA P. KIMBERLEY,
Historian S. Class.

Watch Your Manner.

As a rule courtesy receives courtesy. Many times a rudeness which we resent was called out by something out of the way in our own conduct. A child will very often speak impertinently to one who addresses him roughly, while courtesy he instinctively answers in kind. The girl who is continually encountering rudeness, had better make a study of her own manner.

Types — Busted-hearted — By Sara Moore.

"You could tell that his heart was busted for a block."

At times the butcher, exasperated by this public display of sorrow, rushed to the curb, scattered the crowd, and seizing the redheaded mourner shook him until his shoelaces flopped in the air. The attack, with its accompanying flow of colorful Yiddish, in no wise increased or diminished the noise. The unresisting little figure yielded limply to the violence but his crying continued with regularity.

"What is the matter?" pleaded the Boy, whose limited vocabulary could not keep up with Ghetto fluency.

"He says that the butcher has got his dog," explained the fat lady.

Then her supply of English seemed to fail.

Isadore, somewhat wilting in the heat, stood forlornly clutching a rope from which dangled an empty dog collar. He advanced as far as the curb and put his woe into English as Mrs. Becky— brought a camp stool and planted her huge self in the doorway where her fretful baby could get the air while he was fed. As she moved she ordered the butcher to the rear. He departed from the scene of battle with a meekness which indicated the probable cause of the bandage about his head.

"No you go. It is not your dog," she said, not unkindly, to the boy.

"You could gif me mine dog. See, this is the collar he fits before you got him away," wailed Isadore, backing to the gutter.

"That could not be," said the mild, bearded maker of mattresses, crossing the street to put a paternal hand on the flushed cheek. "They have that dog six months already. I know. You need some other dog."

Isadore sobbed on.

"It's mine. From a puppy I know that dog. Today Morris find him for me after I look and I look. I take him away."

He waved the pathetically vacant dog collar.

The old gentleman departed with a sigh. For another hour neither symnathy, scolding nor heat abated the boy's tears. His companions, tiring of the monotony, deserted him for the hurdy-gurdy monkey at the corner. A few transferred their breathless attention to a sign painter who was lettering the name of a new proprietor on the glass window of a poolroom

At noon the bespectacled, bent old jeweler tried kindly remonstrance. He warned the mourner that he would be ill from hunger and the blistering sun. Isadore never even turned his eyes from Mrs. Becky—'s amused countenance. Every new sympathizer only changed his somewhat mechanical plaint to a fresh outburst of feeling.

"Mine dog. Mine dog. Let me talk mid him. You'll see he knows me." he wept over and over again.

Another hour passed. A small sister appeared with orders from his mother. He was to come to his dinner; but in vain did she argue and threaten.

The mattress maker came back from lunch and again failed to convince Izzie that the butcher was an honest man. Mrs. Becky—'s amusement changed to wrath, to ridicule and back to amusement again. Twice the butcher attempted to rush at the sorrowful one. Twice Mrs. Becky—and matronly friends restrained him. The delivery boy tried threats, teasing, force. Izzie remained glued to the gutter and his determination.

"Mine dog, mine dog!" he grieved, until he was at a point of hysterical exhaustion. The Boy went away to finish her errand in the neighborhood—and came back.

The worried mattress maker brought Izzie a hat. It was grotesquely large but kept off the strong sun. Mrs. Becky— let down an awning and serenely sat in its shade half defending the boy from the butcher and half protecting the shop from invasion.

A stream of brothers and sisters began to relay messages to Izzie from the family flat. Threats of parental wrath only agitated him to louder grief.. Children again flocked to his support but were unable to stick to the point as he did. Most of them sought a cellar entrance for a cool, musty game of craps.

The Goy finally departed for rest and refreshments. When she came back a stern-lipped Big Sister was leading Izzie homeward—by the ear.

An exhausted group of neighbors, the mattress maker, and a futile policeman viewed his departure with relief.

"Gif me mine dog!" he shrieked as he was dragged out of sight. "I will make you. He's mine. He would know it. I go. I gotta. But—tomorrow—you tief—I come back."

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She Made up a Mixture of Sage Tea And Sulphur to Bring Back Color, Gloss, Thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our attractiveness. By darkening your youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

MANY DELEGATES TO ATTEND CONFERENCE

Between Forty and Fifty Boys Will Attend Conference at Eau Claire.—Beloit Will Send Large Delegation.

Betwten forty and fifty boys from Rock county will attend the Thirteenth Annual Wisconsin Older Boys' Conference at Eau Claire, which will be held there Friday, Saturday and Sunday of this week. The attendance at the conference this year is expected to be a record breaker and the programs that are arranged will be most interesting.

The delegates from Janesville will number about five or six and they will leave for Eau Claire Friday morning. Those going from here as Y. M. C. A. delegates are, Robert Lane, Harold Hamer and H. J. Center. Paul Richards and Rev. Brigham will go as delegates from the Sunday schools. L. A. Markham, secretary of the Rock county Y. M. C. A. work, has secured about fifteen delegates to go. The county delegates are as follows: Roy Marsden, Thomas Hartzell, Edgerton; J. E. Wallin, Fulton; Elroy Hinkley, Myron Warner, Milton Junction; A. Skinner, Gerald Sayre, Milton; Robert Lamb, John McLay, Rock Prairie, Lyle French, George Allen, Clinton; Orin Overton, Shopiere.

The Beloit association will send the largest delegation of the county. They expect to send between twenty and thirty boys and are going up with many invitations from the various business organizations of Beloit to invite the conference down at Beloit next year. For the past few years it has been held in the northern part of the state and with the fine new building at the Line City they feel as though they could accommodate the great number of delegates. All Rock county will unite in an effort to have it at Beloit next year.

The Janesville and county delegation will go to Madison and there they will be joined by delegations from Madison, Milwaukee and Racine. The Beloit delegation will charter a special car to take them up to Eau Claire.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 24.—The next meeting of the state board of education will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 30. The date is chosen so that the board members may attend the conference called by President Van Hise of the university of the board of regents of the university, the board of visitors and the executive committee of the university alumni association.

FREIGHT RATE WAR DECLARED IN STATE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 23.—Not since the railroad commission law was enacted in 1905 have so many different classes of freight rates been challenged by the railroads and shippers alike as before the commission at the present time.

The Freight Rate Relief Association of Oshkosh, through their representative, J. N. Tittemore, has filed a complaint directed against all of the roads in the state asking for lower freight rates. This complaint includes several Fox River Valley cities. By a complaint filed yesterday through the La Crosse Shippers' association, the rates on all railroads in that territory are likewise challenged.

The leading railroads of the state have filed petitions asking for rate increases, involving the present rates on lumber, sugar beets, sawlogs, cheese, butter, eggs, seeds, slabwood, live-stock, fuel-wood, ice and leather. The rates on practically every one of these products have been reduced by the Wisconsin railroad commission in the past ten years and now the railroads are asking that these rates should be increased.

In all probability a hearing on all applications both for increases and decreases will be held the first week in January. Statisticians have heretofore figured that the freight rate reductions ordered by the railroad commission have amounted to upwards of $2,000,000 annually. Mr. Tittemore claims that reductions of like magnitude are still due to the people

Letters poured into the commission today from shippers and manufacturing interests in all sections of the state asking if the rate on the particular product in which they are interested would be involved in the hearing. The commission is sending copies of the complaints to all interests affected and in order to accomodate all interested the assembly chamber has been engaged for the hearing place. Commodity rates are being challenged in both petitions.

SHEBOYGAN TO DIVIDE HIGH SCHOOL IN TWO CLASSES FOR SHORT TIME

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Sheboygan, Wis., Nov. 24.—So rapidly has this city of "cheese, chairs and children," grown, that the board of education has announced it will lengthen the hours of the high school, and divide the pupils into morning and afternoon classes, until the new $150,000 high school building is completed. Halls, attics, and the basement, are being used to hear classes in the mean time.

"If You Wish To Sell Anything, Tell the People About It In The Gazette"

So says Mr. Lilburn who has tried the Gazette Want Ads for nearly every proposition.

Do you want something? Simply tell the public about it and out of the 35,000 people who read this paper some one can supply your want.

Some one will buy what you have to sell; rent what you have to rent; etc.

Avalon, Wis., Nov. 23, 1915.

Gazette Printing Co.,

Dear Sirs: On Saturday, Oct. 23rd, I advertised two rams. I made a sale before noon on Sunday and Tuesday the other one went away in an auto, for a quick ride as well as a quick sale. If you wish to sell anything tell the people about it in the Gazette.

JAS. LILBURN.

THREE JANESVILLE PLAYERS IN TITLE GAME AT DUBUQUE

Dalton, Ryan and McCaffery on Dubuque Team Who Play German College Thursday.

Three Janesville players, Maurice Dalton, Joseph Ryan and Ray McCaffery, will play prominent parts in the championship contest to be played Thanksgiving at Dubuque when the two strongest college teams of that city will clash for the Hawkeye title. Indications at present are that the Janesville men will bring the victory to the Dubuque school over the German college.

When those two Dubuque colleges meet, it will be Irish against Dutch and both elevens have undefeated and unblemished records for this season. The Dubuque college has scored 161 points to their opponents' 26, and they have met the strongest teams in their section. "Motsey" Dalton, the star little fullback, has been this college's chief point getter and high praise is sounded for his stellar playing. Evidently "Motsey" has not lost any of his prowess as a line plunger, for which he was renowned in his high school days. Dalton will play basketball this winter with the Janesville Cardinads.

"Joe" Ryan is playing halfback and is booting the ball for the Catholic college. His work has been beyond criticism, showing a great improvement under the coaching of Dorais, former Notre Dame star. One paper report says, "Ryan, left halfback, is not only the possessor of an educated right toe, but also appears to be endowed with seven league boots." Polier, who deserted Carroll college after the Marquette game, is playing quarter and the Indian player is an expert with the forward pass. McCaffery plays center and Dubuque expects to win the title tilt because of their strong line. The Dubuque German college, playing two less games than their rival team, has scored 179 points to their opponents' 13. Comparative scores are valueless in predicting the winner. The weight of the two teams is about even, the average being 160 and a fraction pounds, with an edge in favor of the Germans. The German eleven is coached by Chalmers. A crowd of eight thousand is expected to witness the game and at least twenty are going from Janesville to attend the game.

CHAMPION JESS WILLARD WILL MEET FRED FULTON

New Orleons, Nov. 24.—Announcements have been made that Champion Jess Willard will meet Fred Fulton, Rochester giant, for a twenty round bout here on March third, the coming spring. Frank Moran, Pittsburgh challenger, it is said, demanded too high a price to meet Willard.

Duffy Defeated.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 24.—Ted Lewis all but knocked out Jimmy Duffy, Lockport lightweight, in their bout here last night. Lewis knocked down Duffy nine times and yet failed to put out the Lockport man.

BUT TWO BIG GAMES ON THANKSGIVING

Penn. Meets Cornell and Penn. State Tackles Pittsburgh.— Schedule of Games.

The slowly dying custom of playing big football games on Thanksgiving is reflected in today's schedule. Only two games of more than local interest are scheduled for eastern teams. In the west, one intersectional combat—the Syracuse-Montana game—alone is of more than passing interest.

At Philadelphia and Pittsburgh tomorrow afternoon the two undefeated teams of the east swing into action, and on the results hinges to a large extent whether Cornell will have an edge on Pittsburgh or vice versa in the final accounting.

Cornell should have a comparatively easy time with Pennsylvania, which is completing a disastrous year replete with coaching troubles. Pitt., however, has a tough proposition in Penn. State, which already has licked Pennsylvania and came near beating Harvard.

MILTON WILL HAVE FOOTBALL IN 1916

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Milton, ov. 24.—Milton College will play football next year. Such is the vote of the faculty, who, in response to a petition signed by nearly all the male students, adopted the report of the committee on athletics recommending that football be reintroduced on condition that not more than two outside games be scheduled the first year and that funds for equipment be secured. The provision was added that students whose parents object will not be allowed to play.

The students received the news Monday night with a celebration unparalleled in the memory of any student now in school. In the face of a driving snow storm, a nightshirt torchlight parade of over half the college men, reinforced by a contingent of high school seniors who will enter college next fall, marched down Main street and College avenue to the campus amid volleys of revolver shots. There the jubilant students built a roaring fire to which all the lose material in the vicinity was contributed.

The co-eds of Goodrich Hall showed their enthusiasm for the game by appearing in force at the fire and contributing their cheers to the tumult.

The mob called on President Daland and the members sof the committee, Prof. N. N. Inglis, Prof. L. H. Stringer and Mrs. C. E. Crandall, with prolonged cheering for each.

The resolution is as follows:

"Recognizing that there is an overwhelming demand among the students in favor of football as an official college sport at Milton College; and, whereas, in a public hearing on this question no opposition was brought forth, your committee on athletics recommend that the sport be given one year's trial on condition that there be not more than two scheduled games and that sufficient funds for equipment be secured before its introduction.

RIPON COLLEGE PLAYS MONMOUTH FOR TITLE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Ripon, Wis., Nov. 24. —The Ripon college football team left here today for Monmouth college, in Illinois, for the intercollegiate championship game of Illinois and Wisconsin, on Thanksgiving.

Monmouth has established its claim in Illinois and recognizes Ripon's claim in Wisconsin.

Concerning the bearings of the game between Ripon and Marquette, Ripon officials are not disposed to dispute Marquette's ability to play football, and concede, as far as strength is concerned, that the Milwaukee school is on a par with Ripon. But this, they claim in no way conflicts with their claim to the college championship as Marquette is not a member of the Intercollegiate conference.

YOUNG WHITE WINS OVER JACK REDMOND

Equipped with a long range left jab, a lightning defense and a mighty elusive footstep, Young White outpointed Jack Redmond, veteran Milwaukee lightweight, in ten fast rounds of milling at Beloit last night. Up until the fifth round the bout was even. Redmond's aggressiveness and ruggedness equaling White's cleverness. In the fifth, White fought with less care in protecting his body and face from Redmond's wicked slashes and began to lead. In the sixth he was slamming Redmond with his short left jab with a shorter right cross, and won the shade to all the remaining rounds.

White is due for a rise in the pugilistic circles. He is as fast as lightning on footwork, has a good defense and has fair hitting power. Anyone than can escape the rushes of Jack Redmond for ten rounds and at the same time hit the Milwaukee mit artist, can be branded as no ordinary lightweight. White only lacks hitting power and ring experience. Redmond fought well under adverse conditions. White had it on him by four inches in reach and the cream city fighter was unable to penetrate within his long range defense. It was a boxing exhibition, with few blows, no stalling, but clever, fast boxing.

Young Scotty, who was billed to go eight rounds against Clint Flynn, is in the east looking for matches since his suspension and consequently the number of Janesville fans who witnessed the bouts did not see him in action. Eddie Harris, Milwaukee, substituted, and made a good job of it. Flynn, with his open guard, weakened hitting power, except for a short left, would have been easy for the slugging Scotty. Harris and Flynn fought a good draw. Harris received a bad cut under his eye in the sixth round, which Flynn bombarded with a bloody effect.

Bud Corbett, Beloit, and Fighting Bill Klein went eight rounds to a draw. Corbett fought his usual cover-up swinging style, and Klein was unable to get to him effectively. "Shine" Reed, who saw his best fighting days years ago, was not able to stand the walloping of Frankie Russell of Delavan and Referee Duffy stopped the bout in the fifth round after Reed had been knocked down several times. A fair crowd was in attendance.

MILLER'S REGULARS WIN FROM BAUMANN'S COLTS

FOURTH YEAR MEN CRUSHED BY JUNIORS

Junior Football Eleven Have Little Trouble In Winning From Seniors 25 to 0.

On a ground that would have been more suitable for a skating match than a football game, the senior and junior football teams of the high school engaged in a struggle last night at the fair grounds. The juniors were victors by a score of 25 to 0. The seniors were eliminated from the class contests with little trouble to the third year men. Their team plainly showed their lack of practice, for they fumbled many times and did not have any signals to speak of. McDermott and Spohn for the seniors made the most gains for their team, while Kenning, Pond and Crowley played the most consistently for the juniors.

Coach Keck's men played as though they had the most training and he is to be complimented on the way he developed the team. While the seniors were able to make quite a few gains they were unable to cross the goal line.

Tonight the sophomores and freshmen played again and the winners will play the juniors for the championship of the school. The final game will probably be played some time next week. Lineup:

Seniors.		Juniors.
McDermott	f. b.	Kenning

MAY SECURE COACH DOBIE FOR BADGERS

Washington Wizard May Replace Juneau—Will Elect Captain of Wisconsin Shortly.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Nov. 24.—Gilmour Dobie, the miracle man, and without a doubt one of the foremost football mentors in the country, may coach the 1916 Cardinal gridiron eleven if present ideas are carried out. In a telegram to M. F. Judell, '17, Dobie says he will consider any proposition from Wisconsin. He further states that his contract expires in 1916, and that he might be able to get released before.

Dobie is anxious to come to Wisconsin and coach, according to Judell. Judell says, "There is no use in introducing Dobie. He has coached at the University of Washington in Seattle for the past ten years without losing a single game. His record is envied by even Stagg and Yost."

Two other men, Glenn Warner and "Jumbo" Steim, have been mentioned for the coaching job, but the new find has the big shade on the two former. Dobie is willing to come to Wisconsin, and students and alumni are determined to make a strong fight to get him here. As soon as the name was mentioned on the campus today, students went wild with enthusiasm. There is no secret to the fact that when the contract now held by Juneau expires January 1st, that a strong fight will be made to prevent his retention. Wisconsin athletic authorities must act quickly, is the opinion of Judell, if they want the new man. There is a bare chance that the decision will be made immediately.

To Elect Captain.

Dow Byers is the likely candidate for captain of the 1916 football squad, with "Moose" Gardner and Louis Kreuz other possible men. The team will visit the photographer next week when the election will be made. Byers scored 48 points during the season, the highest individual score. Lynn Smith and E. Simpson were next with 42 and 37 respectively. The Badgers rolled up a total of 235 points to their opponents' 54.

GLENN WARNER MAY BE WISCONSIN'S NEXT COACH IS FROM PITTSBURGH.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 24.—The usual cry of the losing team has been raised by the Wisconsin eleven. "It's the coach's fault," say the Wisconsin students, and those who have been following the game are inclined to agree with them. Bill Juneau has been on the job in Wisconsin for three years with a wealth of material at the Badger school, football fans believe he should be able to make a winning team.

In casting around for some one to take Juneau's place, the Madison alumni have decided that Glenn Warner, coach for the University of Pittsburgh, is the man they want, and negotiations are under way to procure Warner.

He coached the Pittsburgh team last year and his eleven was defeated once. This year they were tied with Cornell for the eastern championship. For about ten years before joining Pittsburgh, he was coach of the Carlisle Indians.

He has been offered a salary of $5,000 a year by the Badger school alumni.

HAUGHTON TO QUIT HARVARD COACHING SQUAD IS RUMORED

New York, Nov. 24.—Percy Haughton, Harvard coach, whose contract expires this year, may not coach the Crimson eleven next year. Rumors to this effect have been received from Harvard and it is said Haughon has recommended Charles Daly, former Harvard quarterback, now Army coach to succeed him.

Finding a sensible cigarette is just plain, common sense

All you have to do is to look for three points. Take any cigarette you know. Then ask yourself—

Is its taste just what you like best?

Is it comfortable to your throat and tongue—free from bite or hotness?

Will it allow you to smoke as often as you'd like to smoke without any mean after-feeling?

Fatimas aren't the only cigarettes that answer "yes" on all of these points. There are other sensible cigarettes. But facts seem to indicate that Fatimas are the sensible cigarette for most men. Because they now outsell every other cigarette in the world costing over 5c.

Doesn't it seem reasonable that you, too, will like Fatima best? Try them—TODAY.

TWO TESTS FOR ANY CIGARETTE

The foundation for a reputation that within 1 pass unchallenged and unhampered.

The taste of the cigarette—according to a leading tobacco journal—is up to the smoker. But there are other qualities that you should look for in the cigarette that you are going to stick to for your steady smoke. Here are a couple of tests that may help the average smoker to choose more wisely between different kinds of cigarettes.

The first test is for coolness, which means more comfort to the throat and tongue. Light any cigarette. Draw in a cloud of smoke—a small, ordinary puff is not sufficient to make this test. Hold it in your mouth for a few seconds. Let it "float" around against your tongue and throat. Now blow out the smoke. If the cigarette contains a high grade of mild tobacco leaves, combined in just the right proportion, it will always feel COOL and smooth both to your throat and to your tongue.

On the other hand, if the proportions are not right and if the cigarette contains inferior grades of tobacco or hidden strands of rank, oily leaf, you will feel a nipping sting at the tip of your tongue or that "sandpaper" tickle in your throat.

Test number two—"How do you feel after smoking all day?"

If the tobaccos in the cigarette include a correct proportion of mild grades—and if all of the various grades have been properly mellowed by age—and if they have been so blended as to bring out the best qualities and to neutralize the best qualities in each of the different types of tobaccos, you will be able to smoke practically whenever you feel like it through the day without feeling any effect from it.

But with another cigarette in which the blend is less skillful, even though the tobaccos are of the highest grade, you will find along towards the end of the day that you are likely to have that feeling of having "smoked too much."
